Maniacs and Nations Rebuilding Not Begun Anti-Semitism Grows A Menace to Society

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1922, by Star Company.

William Sheridan has been in the New Jersey State Hospital for the Insane forty years. Joseph Clee had been there for three years. Joseph Clee seized William Sheridan, banged his head violently against the wall, and killed him. Clee said Sheridan had been "bothering him for five years," although Clee had been in the institution only three years. It was just "homicidal mania," the officials said.

It was not very different from what nations were recently doing to the others, and not much more insane.

And it was not very different from what nations will probably be doing pretty soon, and a good many years from now.

This ought to be the age of pure, constructive work. All American energy, intelligence and skill should be devoted to building up after the war. Instead, government, industry and business are concentrated on the problem of avoiding more tearing down.

How to keep afloat, under our flag, ships that cost Americans three thousand million dollars is one problem.

How to deal with strikes in coal mines, on railroads, all threatening industry, is another. Evidently the war did not teach us with enough violence to teach a real lesson. Europe got a real lesson.

The next piece of news from Europe may be the escape of the Kaiser from Holland into Germany to head the reactionary movement. After that the news may not be so reassuring to the Kaiser. His cousin of Austria was not very fortunate.

The outbreak of anti-Semitism all over the world, from brutal mobs in the Ukraine to polite and refined professors at Harvard, is emphasized by the murder of Rathenau. His father was a Jew, and Germany's anti-Semitic fury, centred on him, was made all the more bitter by his extraordinary ability and unselfish devotion to the national welfare.

For the hundred thousandth time a judge inflicts the utmost penalty, saying to the prisoner, as though he had been the first to think of it, "You are a menace to society."

Many a man thus sentenced might reply, "Society has been a menace and destruction to me. It allows me to land in a filthy slum, to play in a dirty gutter, to be poisoned by bad food, starved by high prices, and to be born of a man soaked with whiskey. Why don't you sentence society along with me?"

Mayor Hylan's political enemies and mockers are his best friends, although they don't know it. Now the Mayor is planning to give the people of his city cheap electric power. Lake Erie is several hundred feet above New York, twice as high above New York city as the highest part of Niagara Falls. The Mayor wonders why he couldn't bring that body of water to New York city or some nearer body of water to use it first for cheap power, then for water.

He says he would like to give every one of New York's six million people cheap electricity for cooking, heating, washing, sweeping.

The corporation papers laugh at him and call him a dreamer. They also laughed at him because he stood on the dock weeping bitterly when his wife sailed for Europe, the first time in their married lives that they had been separated. The weeping wife begged him to take good care of "the baby," their grandchild. This also seemed funny to some of the reporters. It won't seem at all funny to women voters at future elections

Mr. Taft tells an audience in England that people in the West, and in Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, consider Europe something very far away. What happens there doesn't interest them very much unless the price of wheat is affected."

That may be, but all Americans are interested in one thing that is happening just now in Japan.

The story is told in the headings of a special dispatch to the New York Times. "Japan leading in navy building. On unrestricted types she is going beyond the 5-5 ratio fixed for battleships, America dropping back.

"In light cruisers Japan is ahead and nearly equal in submarines at present program.

Very able statesmen Japan sent to our Washington conference.

They bow most politely, rub their hands, make very gentle speeches, and Japan builds submarines, flying machines and whatever else she may need, and with "America dropping back."

However, if anything happens it will give our $1 a year patriots another opportunity for profiteering, another chance to build wooden ships not worth having, flying machines that won't fly, three thousand million dollars' worth of iron ships that the country can't use after it gets them.

New Haven, Ct., June 29.—Joseph C. Pelletier, former district attorney in Boston, Mass., has resigned as supreme advocate of the Knights of Columbus, it was announced at the K. of C. headquarters today.

Mr. Pelletier in a letter to Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty asked that the resignation take effect at once. He leaves the office after fifteen years service, during which he was honored by the Holy See and the French and Italian governments.

Mr. Pelletier, who was removed as district attorney by the Massachusetts Supreme Court on charges of malfeasance and nonfeasance in office, said in his letter of resignation:

"I contemplated resigning some time ago, but when my enemies outside the order commenced a propaganda within it to force trouble i

Father of 8, Up as 'Draft Deserter,' Is Paroled

How can a man with eight children be a draft deserter?

This was the question that made Major-General C. R. Edwards, commanding the First Corps Area, knit his brows today.

Wladyslaw Rockowski of No. 388 Dorchester street, South Boston, was listed in Order No. 1,723, Local Board Division No. 11, Boston.

Though the general could see nil this, he thought that a man should hardly be called a deserter with eight children, especially when he learned other particulars in this case.

Rockowski was placed on parole, which will become ineffective on and after July 15, 1922.

IRISH ARMISTICE FAILS

FREES 40 FALL RIVER AMERICAN CITIZENS

Mexican Rebel Chief Then Seizes 85 Men, Six Natives of U. S.

Washington, June 29 (By International News Service).—The forty Americans and the quarter of a million dollars' worth of American property, belonging to the Cortez Oil Company, seized near Tampico by General Goroxave, a Mexican bandit, have been released, according to official advices, reaching the State Department today.

The rebel chieftain, however, left the American camp and proceeded with his men to the camp of the La Corona Oil Company, near Pecero, where he seized the property and eight-five workers in the camp. The property is owned by Dutch-British interests and included among the eighty-five men captured were six Americans.

The State Department's advices came from Consul Shaw at Tampico. Shaw's first telegram dated yesterday, said that the bandit general had left the American camp at 10 o'clock Monday morning, threatening to return. His second message dated last night said Goroxave had returned yesterday and seized the Pecero camp, in the same vicinity, and had demanded 5,000 pesos (about $4,000) ransom money.

Wall Street Plot Behind Kidnapings

Washington, June 29.—Conclusive evidence in possession of the United States government shows that the "kidnaping" of forty-one Americans in Mexico resulted from a conspiracy conceived in this country to prevent recognition of the Obregon administration.

Like the plan for a rebellion by Pablo Gonzales, exposed by the Hearst newspapers early in the year, this plot was hatched in Wall Street.

Bielaski Free Without Payment of Ransom

Mexico City, June 29 (By the Associated Press).—Escaping from his bandit kidnapers after four days of captivity, A. Bruce Bielaski, former head of the American Department of Justice's investigation bureau, has returned to Mexico City. Friends declared he escaped from his captors at Tetecal, walking thirty miles to Cuernavaca.

Julius Lacaud, head of the Mexico City banking firm which is understood to have furnished the $10,000 for the ransom on the order of Mr. Bielaski's New York company, said he had been authorized to state that Bielaski eluded his captors before the money was paid. Bielaski suffered no more ill effects than might be expected from four days of "roughing it" in the mountains.

Steamer Providence Hits Off Narragansett in Fog; 281 Passengers Safe

Newport, R. I., June 29.—The steamer Providence, bound from New York to Fall River, struck a ledge of rock off Fort Wetherell today. Her passengers were landed here at 8 o'clock this morning. No one was injured.

The Providence struck at 3 o'clock this morning in a dense fog at a point about two miles within the entrance to Narragansett Bay, where the shore is very rocky. She drove 100 feet on the ledge. The tide was out.

Captain Hamlin assured the passengers there was no danger and then sent a call for help to this city, about a half mile distant. The steamer General, also of the New England Steamship Company's line, proceeded to the assistance of the Providence. The latter's passengers were taken off without difficulty and brought here, where arrangements were made to send them to Fall River by train.

The ship was floated at 11:20 and docked at Long Wharf, Newport, at 11:50 a. m. It was a watertight compartment that kept her afloat. Officials of the steamboat company said damage was not serious.

NO PANIC ON LINER.

There was no panic when the Providence crashed.

The vessel was in such a position that some of the passengers were able to land on the Jamestown shore by using a ladder. Others were transferred to the General, which was able to come close alongside because of the depth of the water.

The coast where the Providence grounded is bold and rocky and the water is deep just off the rocks. Had she gone 100 feet to the east she would have cleared the rocks.

Most of the passengers were bound for Boston and the North Shore. They were able to take their baggage with them when rescued.

The extent of the damage to the steamer will not be known until she is cleared.

Tug and Barge Go Ashore During Fog

Block Island, R. I., June 29.—The tugboat Bathgate with the barge Texas in tow went ashore off the southwest side of Block Island early today in a dense fog. Coast guardsmen took off the crews of both boats. The barge was reported as Dublin, June 29.—Republican irregulars made a dramatic sortie this afternoon from their stronghold in the Four Courts Building, but were driven back by Free State troops.

Violent street fighting, accompanied by heavy casualties, was in progress late this afternoon. All civilians were cleared from a district two miles square around the Four Courts Building. Free States were still shelling the Four Courts Building.

An attempt to negotiate an armistice failed when the rebels rejected the terms.

The rebels attacked the Bank of Ireland. Railway lines in County Kildare and County Limerick are being blown up.

Two Republicans were killed in a futile effort to capture a battery of Free State artillery at Dublin Castle. Irregulars on the roof of the Four Courts Building opened fire with machine guns against a Free State aviator, who was making a reconnaissance flight.

One woman was shot dead and two others wounded in fighting in Dame street. An ambush attack

Many Women Fight in Irish Ranks

Dublin, June 29 (11 a. m.)—After a lull of several hours, fighting was renewed today between the Republican irregulars and Irish Free State troops in the vicinity of the shell-wrecked Four Courts building.

The strongholds of the irregulars are under artillery fire.

She has been put in command of Communist headquarters in Georges street. The Countess has had military experience before. At the time of the Easter uprising in 1916 she fought, and was one of the few rebels to escape with their lives.

A great many women have enlisted in the Republican ranks and are assisting the irregulars and Communists. All kinds of materials are being commandeered. Residences at the corners of streets and streets are being seized and converted into fortresses. It is feared that the fighting will spread throughout the city.

The Dail Eireann is scheduled to meet tomorrow, but it is unlikely that it can assemble due to the suspension of train services. The new Parliament is to meet Saturday, but this will be impossible unless conditions improve.

The irregulars still hold important positions in Gardiner and Talbot streets and Parnell square.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE IN 'JAZZ BURGLAR' CASE

The jury in the cases of Bernard Arndt, David Gordon, Harry Russell and Harry Davis, alleged "jazz" burglars, charged with having burglar tools in their possession, reported to Judge Bolsseau in Superior Court today, that they had been unable to agree upon a verdict, after being out twenty-four hours.

Foreman John J. Lane of the jury, told Judge Bolsseau that the jury had stood nine to three for acquittal. Judge Dolsseau immediately stopped the foreman from making further disclosures of what took place in the jury room.

Counsel for the defendants quickly took advantage of this statement and moved that the bail, which aggregated $40,000, be reduced.

After some discussion Judge Dolsseau agreed to reduce the bail to $20,000 in each case, and to this that sum was accepted by the government. All the defendants were then released for another trial.

The men were arrested when police went into a room of the Hotel Rialto and seized a lot of alleged burglars' tools, including a jimmy and a kit of burglars' tools, including a jimmy and a kit of burglars' tools, including a number of jazz musical instruments and sheet music.

During the trial the men testified that two of them said they were in the employment of Boston Post Inspectors to conduct an investigation of the matter, while the other two testified themselves as "musicians."

In three rinks Melbourne G. Norman of Lynn, freeman of a shoe factory there, has seen his six-year-old child flay only three times.

Mrs. Viola Pierce Norman told Judge Burns in Suffolk Superior court that her husband did not want the child when it came. She said that he frequently made suggestions that she give her own away so that he would not have to support him.

The husband alleged that his wife was overfriendly with a wealthy man who visited her home. He denied the charge and said that he had frequently introducing her to wealthy men and asking her to consider them as friends, but he could see them for alienation of affections.

She further charged that she has been forced to work ever since they were married, and that he seldom contributed anything to her support or to the support of their child.

The case was taken under advisement by Judge Burns.

DIVORCEE SAYS TRAFFIC POLICEMAN SMASHED GLASS IN AUTO

CHARGES ABUSIVE LANGUAGE

Newton Woman Complains to Headquarters After Car Stalls at Busy Spot

Declaring that a Boston police officer used abusive language and assaulted a plate glass window in her limousine, Mrs. Vera Natalie Ward, Newton society woman and divorcee, with Eunice F. Ross, the "perfume blue," declares that Officer Webster, stationed at Dartmouth and Boylston streets, "smashed the glass in my car."

Mrs. Ward complained to headquarters, stating that she was going to take action against the officer if something was not done.

"For the protection of other women who may be subjected to the same abuse, I intend to prosecute Officer Webster if he discharges that officer."

Captain Hogan, in charge of the traffic division, told a Boston American reporter that he would look into the matter, at least not at the present time.

"I may have been an accident or the man may have used a little too much force. As for calling him names, he may have raised his voice, but I am sure he did not use the language that Mrs. Ward claims he did in her presence. It is one of the thousands of cases that are reported to me every year."

Passengers Reach Here By Train; Praise Crew

The passengers of the Providence arrived at the South Station on a special train from Newport at 11:18 a. m. today.

Dr. Frank Goodale of Boston, in charge of the special, said:

"When we fell the crash, which was about 2:30 this morning, some of the passengers got out of their berths and rushed out in their pajamas and nightgowns, until the conscientious ones got more decently clad.

Mr. Pelletier's letter of resignation was addressed to Postmaster General Jhnes A. Flaherty, reads:

"I have the honor to tender as Supreme Advocate of the K. C. that it be made effective as soon as possible.

"I contemplated resigning some time ago, but the present exercise sustains the order announced a considerable time ago, and I do not feel that I should be found wanting and which devilopments.

"Failed to support her! That's the reason I'm getting a divorce, is it? Well, I can't," argued the Princess, "I can't help it if everything sell the time."

"Then this way," said the fly, sliding down and sitting on the bunch of straw flowers which topped the cornice of the building. "I was playing handball with a bunch of fellows in a Y. M. C. A. yard. Somebody batted the ball over the wall, and I started up the cornice after it. Halfway up the gold-colored raspings hoist, and I started to go with it. I caught onto a windowsill and managed to stop there.

"Well, I figured I was as good as dead on the ground floor and that I might just as well go the rest of the way up as to go down, so I made my first climb—five stories. Since then I've climbed about 1,500 buildings.

"Did you ever fall?" I asked.

"Once," said the fly. "Thirteen stories. But I didn't get hurt.

"Why?" I said. "I don't see how you didn't."

"Easy," explained George, "I had on my light Fall overcoat."

"Now," I cried, "Another one like that and I'll push you off."

"O'w'on, push me," replied George. "I wouldn't hurt me."

"Huh, it wouldn't—" I began.

"Listen," interrupted George. "Today I've got on my Spring suit."

FELL OFF LADDER.

"What's the hardest job you ever had?" I asked, when he finished laughing at his little joke.

"Well," mused the fly, "I guess it was the time one day last week. I was hanging pictures for my wife and I fell off the ladder. I had to lay off for three days while I healed up. And the last time I was climbing in Boston I had my troubles.

"I climbed up the Little Building and when I got to the top I found a lot of fireproof paint had been spread all over the coping. Every time I took hold my hand slipped. I had to get down.

"How'd you get up, finally," I asked.

"With my head," answered the fly. "I just thought myself over that slippery coping. And I thought about my wife who was waiting for me on top the building. She's a big help to me that way. And my kids on top."

"What'll you do if your kids grow up to be human flies like pa'" I asked.

"Don't" cried George. "Say, if I ever caught on above the second-story I'd break their blooming necks!"

BARRY DENIES WIFE'S LOAN CHARGES

Providence, June 29.—Joseph J. W. Barry, college athlete and athletic coach of Brooklyn, Providence and other places, made denial of Mrs. Esther Barry's charge that he owes money to Frederick M. Morrison, Providence lawyer and defendant in his $25,000 alienation suit.

His father-in-law made the charge in the presence of Mrs. Hazel Watts Barry, who has since set sirens on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

Commenting on what his wife and his parents-in-law had to say, Barry said:

"I notice that my wife, her father and mother and Frederick M. Horton have been making a lot of statements. I'll say this right in the nature of an anvil chorus. The only one represented is my self. Am I entitled to a hearing? Or am I to be ignored, as usual?

"The statements of my wife, father-in-law and Horton contain what included to make me appear in a special light before the court in general. I will not attempt to answer them in detail. I will say that I am willing to do so, but not wish to speak about it all.

DENIES ALL CHARGES

"But there was one statement made, or alleged to be made, by my wife's father, which I cannot pass to the effect that I borrowed money from Fred Morrison of a new defendant in my $25,000 action for alienation of affections. That is not true.

"If anybody but my wife said it I would say that it was a damned lie. But I will not say that. I will say that's not true. I never borrowed a cent from Morrison. I have never had any transactions with him. I am a man who was divorced under circumstances created by her husband from any decent house, and they not told to act, and in so doing I express my deepest appreciation of the kindness of Mr. Morrison in the order in one."

Mr. Litalien will stay in office for a few days in an effort to clear some of the details of his work which have not been cleared up, he said he would be glad to help his successor in any way possible, but he will not be responsible for any error his connection as soon as possible.

She and the Human Fly Have Nice Airy Chat on Cornice of Downtown Building

By THE FLAPPER.

"I could teach you to climb buildings the way I do in six lessons," George C. Polley, the Human Fly, was saying, as we sat and chatted on the cornice of a down-town building.

"I know, George," I said. "But I'm taking shorter and easier lessons now. Don't crowd me. Besides, nothing makes me more climbing than climbing fifteen-story buildings. Lookout, there goes an Ear."

"I'm just watching the climb-bells beneath," explained George. "We've got the traffic system all fixed like walking on my hands on the edge of the roof for them. I hate to see them get stiff necks for nothin'."

"I wish you wouldn't jiggle so much," I snapped. "The cornice is slippery. Sit still."

"I can't," argued the Human Fly. "I'm trying to get a grip on something all the time."

"Then this way," said the fly, sliding down and sitting on the bunch of straw flowers which topped the cornice of the building. "I was playing handball with a bunch of fellows in a Y. M. C. A. yard. LOWELL MILL TO CUT WAGES 10 P. C. JULY 20

Lowell, June 29.—The Merrimack Manufacturing Company announced today a reduction of wages to become effective July 10. The company manufactures a fine grade of cotton cloth and is at present employing about 1,230 operatives, although its normal complement is 3,000.

It is understood that the wage reduction will average 10 per cent. The notice posted today said the mills would be closed all next week.

The Bay State and Hamilton mills have also been kept in operation during the strike of the large part of their help as a protest against the wage cut.

TREATY 'UNFAIR' BUT JAPAN ACCEPTS IT

Tokio, June 29 (By Associated Press).—The Privy Council passed the naval treaty adopted at the Washington Arms Conference and submitted it today to the Prince Regent for ratification.

The council's approval included the provision against poison gas and the clause restricting submarines. Viscount Ito, reporting for the council's investigating committee, said the committee found the ratio of ships apportioned to Japan disadvantageous to the empire and requested the government to use greater care in the future.

The committee of the Privy Council, however, found that the Japanese delegates at Washington were not at fault in failing to make better terms. From a spirit of respect for the Washington Conference in its desire to maintain the world's peace, the committee recommended ratification without amendment.

Japs Defeating 5-5-3 Naval Treaty

Washington, June 29.—Another naval treaty is necessary to maintain the 5-5-3 ratio, Representative Ewing of California, a member of the House Naval Affairs Committee, declared today.

The whole purpose of the treaty limiting armament of the four great powers, which the Senate ratified, may in time to be defeated by the failure to limit destroyers, submarines, air plane carriers and similar ships, according to Ewing.

"The true 5-5-3 ratio cannot be maintained. Japan is building submarines at such a rate, I understand, that will place her strength in this respect above a hundred soon. At this rate, the United States should have two-thirds as many more, but it will not have on the basis of the present program.

"It is easy to see that if Japan had ten airplane carriers, which are not limited by the treaty, and the United States had only one, that the Japanese Navy would be actually far stronger than the ratio of capital fighting ships would indicate.

"My idea of how to combat this possible menace is for America to build five ships of every type for each three that Japan builds. Then when the time came to frame another treaty the United States would be in a very strong position to force its ideas about drastic armament limitations."

WANT DRESSING TENT FOR FROG POND BATHERS

It's Davie Freedman talking. Nine-year-old Davie from the West End, talking in a nasal voice, pitched high.

"We went to the Mayor," says Davie, indicating with a wave of a hand Sammy Goldberg and Harry Koss, "and we asked him to put up tents by the Frog Pond so everybody won't be looking at us when we undress for a swim. He told us to get up a petition and get some signers so we did."

Davie unrolled a sheet of drug store wrapping paper on which were scrawled numerous signatures.

KIDS SIGN PETITION.

"Fifty-nine kids signed it," said Davie earnestly. "I got 'em to come in my entry and give me their names. I wrote 'em down for 'em."

Davie lives at No. 34 North Anderson street. His companions live in the same street.

"We're going over to see the Mayor again now," continued Davie. "The gang wanted to come but it was our idea, me 'n' 'Skinny' 'n' 'Fat's'"; identifying the nine-year-old gentlemen with the nom de plumes, although one glance was quite enough to convince one that Sammy Goldberg was "Fat".

"We're going to give the Mayor the petition 'n' tell him again that we don't like people lookin' at us when we're tryin' to undress. We ought to have a tent We don't like dressin' behind trees anyway."

PROUD OF THAT RAFT.

"Skinny" and "Fat" nodded their nine-year-old heads in unison.

"They built a dandy raft up at the Frog Pond today," continued Davie, "just finished it, didn't they?" "Fat" and "Skinny" nodded.

"Had to let the water out to do it," continued Davie, "but it's a 'pip.' Water'll be in again after the Fourth, though."

He arose. His companions did likewise. While Davie lacks many inches of their height he is accepted as their leader.

"Well, on our way," said Davie. He motioned "Skinny" and "Fat" and the three youthful and overalled musketeers left for the City Hall, with their petition.

EXPELLED FROM SENATE, LORIMER SEEKS FORTUNE

Chicago, June 29.—Eager to pay his debts and build anew his fortunes, William Lorimer, ex-United States Senator from Illinois, a Republican politician, who for years had the patronage of the State in his grasp, is now deep in the jungles of Colombia, blazing a survey for a railroad.

Ex-Senator William Lorimer. International Photo

Though he is 62 years of age, and is afflicted with cataracts of the eyes, he is cheerful and expects to attain his goal. He is representing a big Chicago syndicate, and concessions of mineral and oil lands and the building of a railroad are the objects to be attained.

Lorimer was expelled from the Senate ten years ago for corrupt practices, and several banks in which he had his money failed, swallowing up his fortune.

6 FEET OF WATER IN STREETS OF WORCESTER

Worcester, June 29. — Charlie Toth, the marathon swimmer, ought to be here today.

Six feet of water cover some of the streets. Other streets have only three feet. Children swam in the downtown squares, which looked for all the world like big lakes.

All this was caused by a torrential downpour which, coming in the wake of heavy rains, flooded whole sections of the city, caused thousands of dollars in property damage, blocked trolley and auto traffic, flooded cellars and put most of the telephones out of commission.

The Pinnish Church in Hubbardston was burned to the ground when struck by lightning.

BRIDE TELLS OF SANBORN'S THREATS TO KILL HER

Eleanor Montgomery Sanborn, eighteen-year-old bride, whose separation from Jack Sanborn was accompanied by a peculiarly insidious attack both upon herself and upon her uncle, Robert Montgomery, today gives to the Boston American the eighth instalment of her story concerning this unhappy marriage and bitter consequences. Mrs. Sanborn was found by the Boston American. Her narrative is given to this newspaper exclusively. Garbled rewrites of it may be found in other Boston publications—twenty-four hours late—as usual.

This chapter deals with that "$100,000 letter" and a threat to kill.

By BERT FORD.

"And now for that horrid $100,000 letter. It makes me boil when I think of it. Jack told me the wife of a Winchester lawyer was mixed up in it. He said she had social aspirations and thought mother would help her break into society if her husband helped get money out of Uncle Bob, or something of the sort.

"My mind isn't clear. It's blurred—that experience. Why wouldn't it be? I was in bed under a doctor's care four or five days as a result of it. My arms were black and blue and my throat bore finger marks.

"That letter is one of the worst nightmares of my unhappy marriage. And to think that I penned it. But Jack forced me to at his dictation. He told me he'd kill me if I refused. He looked angry enough to. He was not shamming, but he was more violent that time than ever.

LOCKED ALL DOORS.

"I really feared him. You see we were in that great big house alone. Not another person there but we two, and Jack locked all the doors before he proposed writing a letter that would wring $100,000 out of my Uncle Robert.

"He had invited me for a spin in my roadster, the one Uncle Bob bought me and which he is still sporting around in. We whirled through Cambridge and Arlington and—I discovered that he was headed for Algremont, the Sanborn home in Winchester.

"The mansion was deserted when we arrived. Jack must have known that before we left the Buckminster. As I look back at it the whole thing was cunningly staged. Whether anybody else was a party with Jack in it I don't know, other than what fragments he admitted later.

"He worked fast and deliberately, as if he had mapped the whole thing out before hand. We had hardly reached the house before Jack hurriedly looked from room to room, locked the doors and confronted me.

DICTATED LETTER.

"He looked grim. He produced writing material and ordered me to put down certain things on paper. I refused. He became angry. Again he ordered me. I told him I wouldn't do anything of the kind and then he grabbed me. He caught me by the arms first. I struggled. Then he caught me by the throat and put his knee on me and scared me so, I consented.

"As he stood over me I wrote what he dictated. My eyes were so blurred with tears that I could scarcely see. I was weak and afraid. I had never seen Jack so angry before. Uncle Bob had told me how he had roughly handled members of his family, his mother and sister and his dad. They said some one of them had been thrown down stairs.

"These memories rushed back on me as I sat and wrote. I believed everything I had heard about Jack's temper and cruelty. He looked the part. He was like a young demon that day. He said he'd get $100,000 out of Uncle Bob with that letter.

BEGINNING OF THE END.

"For the life of me I can't recall what I wrote. I was too scared and excited. Uncle Bob and his lawyers wanted to know. They asked me how I got those marks on my arms and neck and I was afraid to tell them for ever so long. Jack told me he'd kill me if I ever told. Uncle Bob and his lawyers had me on the grill for hours and hours.

"Uncle Bob was furious when I finally confessed what little I remembered. I am sorry I wrote a line. I should have followed my impulse and defied Jack, and let him kill me if he was so bent. I have regretted that day ten thousand times.

"That was the beginning of the end. It was impossible for me to remain with Jack Sanborn any longer. I had worn out my patience. I had been as generous as possible. I had given him every dollar I could lay my hands on. When Uncle Bob cut off my allowance Jack showed his true colors.

"Uncle Bob was quick to come to my rescue. He ordered the hotel people to transfer my belongings to another suite and ordered Manager Delmonte to lock up the apartments that had been mine and Jack's. This was done while Jack was talking his folks.

"When he returned he was indignant. He strutted around and demanded to know who closed his suite. He said it was an outrage to be locked out of one's rooms. But Manager Delmonte silenced Jack in fine style in front of guests and help. It was in the dramatic moment when, Jack, shaking with anger, demanded his trunk.

"'You'll get your trunk, young man, when you pay your bills and not a minute sooner,' said Manager Delmonte calmly as onlookers laughed. "Don't come around here and try to put on any swaggers. There's a prettty heavy account against you, young man, and you'd better pay up or shut up."

"Jack's trunk and other belongings were put in storage and held as security. I have never heard whether he ever got them.

FOUND HAVEN WITH CHUM.

"That was the big break.' Uncle Bob thought I needed change and rest. He asked where I preferred to go. I thought of my boarding school chum, whose father is a millionaire manufacturer in New York. I slipped away to her home. Her parents were lovely to me.

"While Boston newspapers were speculating over what they termed my 'mysterious disappearance' and saying I was in this or that hospital or sanitarium, I was having a stunning time attending the theatres and dancing at the Commodore and the Biltmore and other hotels, where we dined frequently.

"And then the Boston American found me."

HARMONY'S SKETCHES OF ROTARIANS

ROTARIANS ARE GUESTS OF HOOD

Cherry Hill Farm in Beverly, the big estate of Charley Hood's cultured cows and other thoroughbreds, was the scene of another gala gathering when the Boston Rotary Club, 400 strong, enjoyed its second outing of the season as Charley's guests.

Although the day was hot and sticky, every one of the 400 had a high old time. The day was taken up with sports, the feature sport being the assimilating of quantities of Hood's ice cream at booths about the big estate.

The baseball game went off as per schedule, the ball driving race was a scream, and the winners reported several bruised fingers. The unique feature on the sport card was the nursing bottle contest. The Rotarians in this race were blindfolded and at a given signal a nursing bottle full of milk was shoved into their mouths, and the business men of Boston showed clearly that they haven't forgotten their first days in the big world.

Inspection of the Hood dairy, dancing and a dinner helped to make the occasion one of pleasure.

LOUD DEMANDS $2,000 FOR LAW'S DELAY

Clarence W. Loud of Melrose, acquitted January 26 in the East Cambridge Superior Court of the murder of Patrolman James A. Preston of Wakefield, has entered action seeking reimbursement for Middlesex County's alleged failure to try him within six months of the time of his arrest, as provided under the Massachusetts statute laws.

Clarence W. Loud

Section 13, Chapter 277, provides a person charged with a capital crime may be reimbursed or is entitled to compensation if not tried within six months after arrest.

Loud was arrested May 10 of last year for the murder of the Wakefield patrolman. The six months' period expired November 10. His trial commenced January 3 of this year. January 26, he was freed by a jury of his peers.

Loud is understood to be seeking approximately $2,000. It is said to be the first time in the history of Middlesex County and the Commonwealth, that a person acquitted of a charge of first degree murder has ever sought redress.

'LITTLE NELL' WON'T MAKE UP WITH NELSON

Instead of receiving a welcome he was urged by the chief of police to leave town by the quickest possible route. A train was scheduled to leave in an hour, but the chief advised the use of an automobile. Mrs. Nelson, who before her marriage was Miss Nellie Rudisill is suing her husband for divorce. Nelson was accompanied by his brother, Camillus. Half Million Pints of "Medicine" for Bay State Folk

Massachusetts is sick. Very sick.

That is the opinion of Prohibition Director Elmer C. Potter. In the last year 500,000 pints of "medicine" were distributed in this State. This equals about a pint to every eight persons, or a half-gill per person.

"This is considerably more than was necessary for purely medicinal purposes," says the director.

There are 4,000 physicians in Massachusetts who are licensed to give out prescriptions. They are allowed 100 prescriptions for a pint every three months.

"Conny" was a Chinese slave girl and the picture was taken in San Francisco's Chinatown.

TROTTER ISN'T BABE'S FATHER, SAYS GIRL

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 29.—Denial that Melvin R. Trotter, superintendent of the Grand Rapids City Rescue Mission, formerly of Boston, was the father of a child born to Miss Florence Moody his secretary, in 1917, was made by Miss Moody in a statement to George E. Walker, for many years connected with the mission, according to a deposition by Walker read today at the hearing in the separate maintenance suit brought against the superintendent by his wife, Mrs. Lottie M. Trotter.

The percentage of the child is an issue in the suit, in which Mrs. Trotter alleges infidelity.

Miss Moody said the father was a man connected with the mission, but she refused to divulge his identity because he was married, according to the deposition.

The deposition also referred to a letter Mrs. Trotter is said to have written to Gilbert Deane, acting president of the mission, asking him to investigate Trotter's relations with Miss Moody.

Mrs. Trotter, charged in the letter, the deposition asserted, that Trotter had admitted parentage of the child.

The deposition further asserted Walker had protested to Trotter against undue familiarity with women at the mission.

Walker was in court today, but his physical condition made it impossible for him to take the stand.

McCORMICK NOW SAYS HE WILL SUE

Chicago, June 29.—Harold F. McCormick, head of the executive committee of the International Harvester Company, has announced his intention to sue every newspaper which published the report that he purchased a gland of another man to be grafted into his own body.

It was Mr. McCormick's first statement since he went to the Wesley Memorial Hospital for an operation almost three weeks ago, and he made it plain that he has chiefly incensed at the repeated stories that he had taken advantage of the unfortunate circumstances of a fellowman to deprive him of a vital organ.

"That is utterly untrue," he said, and he pointed out that when the rumor first became current Dr. Victor D. Lespinasse, who attended him in the hospital, issued a denial that a human gland was used.

"This denial," said Mr. McCormick, "was printed by some, but not by all of the newspapers which printed the original story."

O'BANNON, WHO HAD MILLIONS, INSANE, BROKE

Providence, June 29.—Two years ago John W. O'Bannon was rated a multi-millionaire.

He ranked as one of the most prominent business men in Rhode Island.

His affiliations included the large Barrington plant of the O'Bannon Corporation and the Nonnaco chemical plant in Phillipsdale, East Providence.

Today O'Bannon is bankrupt.

He is in danger of commitment to a State insane asylum in New York State. An ironic circumstance is that if he is committed, he will have to be a charity patient.

Since the dynamic organizer of the O'Bannon corporation was found mentally incompetent in June, 1929, he has been a patient in the sanitarium of Dr. Flavius Packer in Riverdale, N. Y. Tuesday the patient was removed to the Packer Farm at Fawling, N. Y.

The last sworn report of John T. Dooling and Harry B. Rosen, custodians of O'Bannon's property, showe that the former millionaire's liquid assets (cash) had shrunk in the Summer of 1921 to a trifle over $11,000. Since then claims against him have reduced that figure to practically nothing. Most of the corporations with which O'Bannon was identified have been thrown into bankruptcy or are in process of reorganization.

Two years ago O'Bannon's assets, by his own figures given to his secretary, Miss Anna N. Hess of Nutley, N. J., totaled $2,238,000. Some years before he was reputed to be worth $15,000,000.

It was O'Bannon's mother, Mrs. Ellen Reinke of St. Louis, who had him committed to the sanitarium. She died recently. His wife, who was Mrs. Mary Long Foote, died several years ago.

O'Bannon met Mrs. Foote a few days after she had obtained a South Dakota divorce from Clarence W. Foote of Syracuse in 1905. Five months later Foote sued Mrs. O'Bannon for divorce in New York State, naming O'Bannon and Henry M. Flagler, Standard Oil man, as corespondents.

ACTRESS GETS $25,000 FOR INJURY IN THEATRE

New Haven, Ct., June 29.—Miss Dorothea Antel, a vaudeville actress, in an action against Sylvester Z. Poli, owner of the Poli circuit houses, was awarded damages of $25,000 by a jury in Superior Court. Miss Antel asked $100,000 for injuries alleged to have been received in the Palace Theatre on Main Street in Hartford the night of Dec. 29, 1919. Miss Antel was brought into the courtroom three times during the trial on a cot.

Betty Alden Says the Cabots Are Back at Beverly After Trip Around World

By BETTY ALDEN.

BACK from a trip around the world are the Godfrey Lowell Cabots, which is of considerable interest to the Summer clan along the North Shore, where the Cabots are now domiciled for the season at "The Oaks," their Beverly Farms estate.

That the Cabots tend to make "things hum" along the Shore is rather more than a figure of speech, for Mr. Cabot, who is quite an expert in aeronautics, often flies in a hydroplane along the beach. Hardly less active is Mrs Cabot (Maria Moors), who takes no end of interest in charitable enterprises there. She is usually seen driving her electric coupe, carefully guarded by her Boston terrier, the latter being known as "Orkette."

During their travels abroad, the Cabot Winter home in Cambridge, as well as the Summer place at the Farms, has been occupied by their son and daughter-in-law, the James J. Cabots (Catherine Rush).

TODAY'S bride is Miss Marjorie Warren, whose marriage to young William Whitman 3d takes place at high noon in Trinity Church. Miss Warren is to be escorted to the altar by her father, Fiske Warren, of Mt. Vernon street. She has selected her sister-in-law-to-be, Miss Ruth Whitman, as maid of honor, while Mrs. Charles O. Loring (Katherine Page) of Boston, and Miss Marion Walton of Scarsdale, N. Y., have been chosen to attend her as bridesmaids.

The groom, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Whitman, Jr., of Commonwealth avenue, has selected a distinguished corps of ushers for the occasion.

SPEAKING of weddings—what a winsome picture Louise Fessenden made when I spied her among the guests at the marriage on Tuesday of "Kat" Winslow and Louis B. McCagg, Jr.

Miss Fessenden, whose sister Rose was of the bridesmaids' group, wore a charming frock of gray and blue with a long skirt so full that it was almost "hooped." A dainty drooping hat of gray, with blue streamers, helped to carry out the old-fashioned effect of the costume, which was undeniably becoming to the daughter of the Sewall H. Fessendens. Those who saw her on Tuesday could not help but be reminded of the very similar picture which she made as "Ethel Stanley," the heroine of "Now and Then," given in April by the Vincent Club. For the settings of the first part of "Now and Then" belonged back in 1861, and the demure costumes worn by the Vincentites were naturally of that period.

Miss Ella Snelling, daughter of the Rodman Paul Snellings of Commonwealth avenue and the North Shore, was also among the throng of smart guests at the Winslow-McCagg nuptials. Miss Snelling, who is now with her family at their Beverly Farms estate, after the annual Spring visit at Hot Springs, wore an attractive gown of gray taffeta. Her wide-brimmed henna hat was of horsehair.

Petite Mary Hall, one of the prettiest "debbies" of the past season, was also there in a simple frock of tan with cream color lace. It was just a month ago that Miss Hall served as maid of honor at the wedding of her sister, the former Barbara Hall, and Charles Edward Thayer 2d, the ceremony taking place in Grace Episcopal Church, Medford.

Mrs. Geoffrey Story Smith ("Kat" Coolidge), who was in the group of bridesmaids attending Tuesday's bride, has returned with her husband for a brief visit at "Hyman Farm," the Coolidges' magnificent estate at Magnolia, before going to Philadelphia to settle.

I HEAR that "Tom" Rice is soon to bring his bride to Hamilton, where he has taken the "old Brown house," formerly occupied by sports-loving Mary Curtis. One could hardly expect "Tom" Rice to tear himself away from his beloved Shore, where he is one of the crack players of the Myopia polo team.

It was just three weeks ago that society turned out for the ceremony at Emmanuel Church, which transformed lovely Elizabeth Lyman into the bride of young Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Rice of Turner Hill, Ipswich. I expect that the "old Brown house" will be the scene of many jolly times, where the youthful lady of the house should make a most attractive hostess.

ARRAIGN BOGAN ON MURDER CHARGE

Prohibition Agent Edward Bogan was arraigned today on a charge of murder and was held for the Grand Jury without bail. Since June 11 Bogan has been out on $4,000 bail on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

On June 10, during a street car fight near the North ferry, Bogan shot Joseph Sequeira, nineteen, of No. 20 Hanover street. Sequeira died yesterday at the City Hospital. The shooting occurred when Bogan, Prohibition Agent Joseph Perrault and a man named Stephen Nelson went to the home of a Polish woman on Battery street and attempted to buy liquor there.

On leaving the house they were attacked by several men, according to Bogan's statement, and chased as far as the ferry. When the pursuers pressed around the agents Bogan displayed his badge, drew his gun and told the crowd he was a government agent. He asserts that the crowd moved closer and threatened him, and he fired two shots, one of which his Sequeira in the abdomen.

SUICIDE OF ADAMS POSTMASTER

Adams, June 29.—Postmaster James E. Cadagon, sixty-five years old, committed suicide today in the Adams Post Office, by shooting himself through the head with a 45-calibre revolver. He died almost instantly.

Cadagon had been despondent for several days and it is thought he may have been mentally unbalanced when he took his life. He was appointed eight years ago by President Wilson and his term was soon to expire. He is survived by a widow and brother.

No. 1—I'd pass the hand.

No. 2—Five hours.

No. 3—The manufacturer would buy my goods. He wouldn't take a chance on my telling his wife.

No. 3—Threaten him with exposure if he did not buy.

From Charles W. Phipps, No. 7 Smith avenue, Methuen:

No. 1—I'd raise him 50 cents and draw two cards, as I'd figure to have three chances, as follows: First, that he might be bluffing; second, that I might draw another eight, and third, I might fill with another pair. I'd raise him expecting a comeback, and if I filled I'd go the limit. If I didn't I'd just call. By raising before the draw I'd have the alternative of either calling or raising, depending on the strength of my hand.

No. 2—Five hours.

No. 3—As business stands today I'd either sell or tell.

POSSIBILITY OF DRAW.

From Victor Hyams, No. 446 Geneva avenue, Dorchester:

No. 1—I'd play and draw two cards. It would give me, possibly, four eights or a full house. If so I'd bet the rest of the ten dollars. If not I'd drop out and trust to luck the next hand.

No. 2—Seven hours.

No. 3—I'd try to sell him, but I'd not mention seeing him in the restaurant.

From Henry C. Bradley, No. 24 Watch street, Rochdale: No. 1—I'd draw two cards in hopes of making a full house or four eights. If I made the full I'd raise his bet and if he raised back I'd call. On the other hand, if I caught the fourth eight I'd continue to raise back till the $10 were gone. No. 2—Seven hours. No. 3—I'd not approach him at that particular time. In regards to the lady I'd certainly mind my own business.

FORMER BOSTON POLICEWOMAN IS BRIDE

Miss Sabina Delaney, former Boston policewoman, who resigned from the force when she refused to act as a "spotter" for her superior officers was married at Lawrence to Charles A. Weber of New York. The ceremony took place in St. Mary's Church, the Rev. James T. O'Reilly officiating.

Mrs. Weber is a graduate nurse and served overseas for eighteen months. She was appointed to the police force in the Spring of 1921 and at the time expressed her intention of trying to assist unfortunate women and wayward children.

Through her efforts the proprietors of several questionable cafes and rooming houses were brought to trial. She tendered her resignation after an open clash with Captain Charles T. Reardon, head of the vice squad. One of the things she objected to was Captain Reardon's criticism of her wearing a fur coat.

"Under Captain Reardon," Mrs. Weber said at the time of her resignation, "my work became distasteful. I could not approve of the methods he adopted and therefore I resigned. Until I came under the supervision of Captain Reardon I was accomplishing something in assisting fallen women to regain their self-respect and win back a place in society. Under him I could do nothing."

59, HE STARTS FOR NEW YORK ON 'HIGHBOY'

John J. James of Roslindale Will Not Sleep During the Trip

He's off! The sleepless cyclist!

Mounted on his "highboy," a high wheel bicycle of a generation ago, John J. James, fifty-nine-year-old cyclist, started today from Summer street in front of the Boston American office for New York and intends to make the trip without sleep.

"I'll get there some time Saturday," he said just before he departed. "That is if the weather isn't too bad," and he looked at the threatening sky.

The several hundred well-wishers who had gathered to see him "hop off" cheered and shouted "good luck" as he waved a goodbye.

Mr. James, who lives at No. 4292 Washington street, Roslindale, believes that Dr. Osler was all wrong when he said a man should be chloroformed when he reached the age of sixty.

"I am in the 'pink' of condition," he said, "and by completing this ride without sleeping I shall prove that Dr. Osler's theory was incorrect.

"Of course I will have to rest a little here and there when the riding is hard, but I will not sleep."

The hardy old rider, veteran of many a six-day race, expects to reach Springfield tonight and Bridgeport tomorrow night. Until he reaches Palmer he will take the trip easy, traveling at a speed of about ten miles an hour. From Palmer to New York he intends to average between fifteen and twenty miles.

Mr. James is riding the same wheel he rode when he won a prize in the Boston American bicycle run two months ago. He has owned it for thirty-three years.

'HIGHER UPS AT CAPITAL' ACCUSED BY OHIOAN

Washington, June 29.—The warm political campaign in President Harding's own State of Ohio was further enlivened today by charges that "higher ups" in Washington have "ordered" the nomination of Carmi Thompson as Republican candidate for Governor, and have diverted efforts of Federal office holders in the State to that end. The charges were contained in a letter written to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon by Representative Charles L. Knight, Republican, an Akron publisher, and a candidate for the nomination.

Weds Descendant of Royalty in Cafe Love-Match

MRS. ALEXANDER ROMANESQUE

She was formerly Miss Jessie A. Walton, whose brother owns the Walton chain system of restaurants. She wed over strong opposition on the part of her family.

HEIRESS WEDS, HONEYMOONS IN RESTAURANT

The much-heralded nuptials of Alexander C. Romanesque, former dish washer and descendant of royalty, and Miss Bessie A. Walton, sister of David Walton, the lunchroom king, were solemnized in the rectory of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Today they started their honeymoon in the bridegroom's little restaurant and lunchroom at Revere.

Despite spirited opposition on the part of the forty-two-year-old bride's family, Miss Walton left her temporary home at the Franklin Square House and said "I do" with the former dishwasher, 20 years her junior.

Several months ago, when Miss Walton dined in a restaurant belonging to her millionaire brother, she noticed Romanesque, a humble bus boy. Not knowing her identity he made advances toward friendship and soon the pair were affianced lovers.

Despite assertions of "Romeo" Romanesque that he was a descendant of European royalty, the family of Miss Walton insisted that she would not marry a bus boy. Now the erstwhile bus boy is proprietor of two restaurants, though less than a year has passed.

And from the church the happy couple went directly to a two-room "love nest" in the rear of the bridegroom's restaurant, where the honeymoon will be spent.

MORE CHILDREN RUN DOWN IN STREETS

The slaughter of the innocents continues in Greater Boston.

Within the past twenty-four hours two more children have been run down by automobiles and wagons. Within the past week at least a child a day has been the victim of an automobile.

The two latest victims are Francis Brown, five years old, of No. 6 Nazro street, Roxbury, and Sahan M. Saad, eight years old, of No. 73 Hudson street.

The Brown child was knocked down by an automobile operated by Joseph P. Ball of No. 1 Hughes street, Roxbury. The child was taken to the City Hospital, seriously injured. Ball was arrested charged with operating a car without a license. The Saad boy was run over by a horse and wagon while playing in a South End street. He was taken to the City Hospital in a critical condition.

$500,000 AMOSKEAG PROFITS HIDDEN, SAYS EXPERT

Manchester, June 28.—The moonshine has come to Mahomet.

That is, Frederick C. Dumaine, treasurer of the Amoskeag company, arrived in this city this afternoon in response to the invitation of the strikers' Committee of Ten to discuss strike questions for the purpose of paving the way to a settlement of the industrial conflict that has been going on for twenty weeks.

In accepting the invitation, Dumaine said he would save the committee the trouble of a trip to Boston and would be at his mill office in Manchester this afternoon.

This evening the committee will give out a report of the results of the meeting.

By CHARLES O. POWER.

Manchester, N. H., June 29.—There seems to be such a thing as' Amoskeag-poison in Manchester. It is being used now to discredit the efforts of the Committee of Ten assigned to confer with Frederick C. Dumaine, the big boss of Amoskeag, for the purpose of finding out why he and his cronies on the Board of Trustees refuse to submit the strike issues to arbitration.

There are men here who have never said a kind word about the strike. They have carefully refrained from expressing any criticism of Mr. Dumaine or the Amoskeag. In fact, they have been known to say that there is some merit in the Amoskeag side of the case. Strangely enough they now are wondering if the committee, after all, has not been appointed and brought in to prominence through the efforts of pseudo friends of the strike, but who at heart are in the good graces of the inner circle of the Amoskeag Company.

Of course, it is no such thing. This talk is for the purpose of undermining and destroying the confidence of the strike leaders and the rank and file of the operatives in the committee selected to see Dumaine. It has been effective in making some people here suspicious, which means that they have unconsciously helped the circulation of the poison.

The strike leaders, however, are not affected by this kind of work. They realize that whatever the purpose of the committee it has no power to take any action that would be binding upon the strikers without the consent of the latter. They still maintain that the recommendation for arbitration made by State Labor Commissioner J. S. B. Davis is the only one that holds the essential elements for a satisfactory settlement.

Those essentials are that all the workers go back to their jobs without discrimination; that the working week of forty-eight hours be continued, and that the proposed wage cut of 20 per cent. be adjusted only after a complete knowledge of the facts relative to Amoskeag business has been ascertained.

Yesterday, by appointment, a representative of the Boston American conferred with three of the most prominent men in Manchester, a clergyman, a lawyer and a business man. These men went over the strike situation from the beginning up to the present time; considered the underlying causes, praised the manner in which the strike had been conducted, the general good conduct of the strikers, condemned some of the methods of Chief of Police Healy, criticised Governor Brown for his attitude of hostility toward the mill workers and his apparent total lack of understanding of the rights of a community, and analyzed the claims that have been made in attempted justification of the stand of the Amoskeag Company.

TIRED OF BOGEY.

"It would be well," said the lawyer, "for the Manchester Committee of Ten, when it sees Dumaine, to tell him in no uncertain terms that they are sick and tired of the bogey of Southern competition. He should be reminded that the textile industry is the most highly protected industry intrenched behind the tariff walls of this country. He should be reminded that this tariff protection is the result of constant howling against the pauper labor of Europe and the cheap foreign competition. He should be reminded that for many years the textile industry has aided this tide of immigration from Europe in order that it might fill its mills with men and women who would work for less money than American workers would."

"He should be reminded by this committee that the descendents of these foreigners have taken root in the American soil, have established homes in Manchester and cannot be disposed of with the verdict that if they don't like conditions here they may go elsewhere. These people are established in Manchester and that alternative would be hard for them to accept. We have stood with our mills through fear of Southern competition, but we will not stand with them through fear of Southern competition or help them make our neighbors meet the pauper labor of our own country, now being exploited in Southern cotton mills."

BUSINESS MAN'S VIEW.

The business man furnished me with some very interesting figures relative to the sales, the income account, the dividends and the surplus of the Amoskeag mills.

"First of all," he said, "Amoskeag has an investment in Manchester which is almost priceless. The company is not declining into poverty and the best evidence is that it has just finished a $1,000,000 dam, has paid more than $3,000,000 for its only competitor, the Stark mills, and is now making plans for the building of another $1,000,000 dam."

"The first thing it should do, if it is desirous of increasing production per operative, is to take enough money out of its great surplus to equip its mills with the latest and best modern machinery. It is admitted that the machinery of the Southern mills is much better than that in the Amoskeag mills; it is admitted that the Southern cotton mill corporations make up a cheaper class of labor. By what method of reasoning, then, does the Amoskeag expect to win in competition with a cheaper class no long as it handicaps its own workers with antiquated machinery?"

"Here are some figures, precisely as given out by Amoskeag, which give the lie to every claim that the Amoskeag Company is not operating at a very good profit. In 1907 Amoskeag dividend payments amounted to $321,576 with $310,481 carried over to surplus. In 1921 Amoskeag dividend payments amounted to $2,533,600, and in that year an amount was carried over from surplus to dividends of $1,350,863. That gives only an idea of the whole story, inasmuch as it does not show the amount of preferred dividends which, it may surprise you, are not carried in the dividend account at all, but are included in the "cost of manufacture" account.

REAL STORY OF 1921.

"The real story about the 1921 dividend and surplus is this: That $2,533,600 created as dividend, is on common stock only. On preferred stock there was paid dividends amounting to $455,000, making a total dividend payment of $2,978,600. From the surplus there was taken, as referred to above, $1,350,953, which shows that the net profits of Amoskeag for last year were $1,722,647. It is quite likely that much of this amount taken from surplus was the interest from Liberty Bonds and other outside investments.

"It seems strange that in 1918, $4,015,881 should be laid aside for surplus and only $1,036,800 paid out in dividends on common stock; and in 1919 $6,778,646 put into surplus and only $1,168,400 paid out in dividends; and in 1920, $2,654,100 given over to surplus and only $1,684,400 paid out in dividends, while $2,533,600 were paid out in dividends this year, requiring a surplus deficit. The only explanation is, of course, that the stockholders must have their dividends. Accepting that as an explanation it is easy to see why it was proposed to cut the wages of the employes 20 per cent. rather than take another slice off of the surplus melon in order to bolster up dividends to an amount greater than the net profits."

"There has been about a half million dollars more profit per year since 1913 than is shown by any of the published Amoskeag figures. This is because dividends paid on preferred stock are included in cost of manufacture and are not included in the regular statements of dividends. This preferred stock draws $4.60 per share per year. From 1913 to 1919, inclusive, there were 116,200 of these shares, that is, the dividend payment on these shares was $518,600 a year."

"In April, two years ago, 15,200 of these shares were bought up and retired, leaving an even 100,000 outstanding. A big total of shares in round numbers is easy to manipulate for stock dividends of any desired par cent. which could be declared and distributed in new shares without the inconvenience of fractional shares. Since April, 1920 preferred dividends have been $455,000 a year.

"From 1914 to 1919, inclusive, dividend payments were reported as $1,036,800 a year. There were 172,800 shares of common stock outstanding. Divide and you will see that the dividends come out an even $6 a share. You find in financial publications statements that Amoskeag common was paying dividends at the rate of $6 a year in those years.

"Since the preferred dividend payments are not in the regular dividend column there is no other place for them except in the "cost of manufacture" column and that is how you can prove that preferred dividends are not included in the dividend reports of the Amoskeag Company."

This financial statement will be continued tomorrow.

Cocoanut Oil Makes a Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten your hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last every one in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

The Young Mother.

THE ILLS OF INFANTS AND CHILDREN should be so well known to the youngest of mothers that a reminder or a repetition of the symptoms of illness seems unnecessary, yet there are some mothers who overlook a feverish condition, a little colic, or a disposition to be irritable. If not corrected they may lead to serious sickness. And to correct them, to bring Baby back to its happy self, is so easy by the use of Castoria—a medicine prepared just for infants and children. It will regulate the bowels (not force them), aid digestion and so bring quiet and rest.

Fletcher's Castoria has been doing this for over 30 years; regulating the stomach and bowels of infants and children. It has replaced the nauseating Castor Oil, so-called Soothing Syrups, poisonous Paregoric and other vicious concoctions in the homes of true and honest mothers—mothers who love their children.

Those mothers will give their babies foods and medicines especially prepared for infants and children.

CASTORIA

A Word About Truth.

"Great is Truth, and mighty above all things." So says the Old Testament, yet it is equally true to-day. Truth shows no favors, fears no enemies.

From the inception of Fletcher's Castoria, Truth has been the watchword, and to the conscientious adherence to this motto in the preparation of Fletcher's Castoria as well as in its advertising is due the secret of its popular demand.

All imitations, all substitutes, all just-as-good preparations lack the element of Truth, lack the righteousness of being, lack all semblance even in the words of those who would deceive.

And you! Mothers, mothers with the fate of the World in your hands, can you be deceived? Certainly not.

Fletcher's Castoria is prepared for Infants and Children. It is distinctly a remedy for the little-ones. The BABY'S need for a medicine to take the place of Castor Oil, Paregoric and Soothing Syrups was the sole thought that led to its discovery. Never try to correct BABY'S troubles with a medicine that you would use for yourself.

URGES RUSSIA RESTORE U. S. PROPERTY

By the Associated Press.

The Hague, June 29.—Sir Phillip Lloyd-Greame of the British delegation insisted upon the consideration of definite propositions in today's discussion with the Russians.

He suggested that all property or undertakings of foreigners in Russia should be divided into two classes for the purpose of determining in what manner the Russians would restore possession to all the old owners.

In the first group he would place the industrial and commercial enterprises. This class would embrace the extremely large American interests, including the International Harvester Company's plant near Moscow, the National City Bank's branches in Petrograd and Moscow, the Westinghouse and Singer plants and the Standard Oil holdings in the Caucasus.

In the second class the scheme places immovable property not included in the first category. He urged restoration of possession in the case of the industrial and commercial groups be given first consideration.

MINE OWNERS AGREE TO PARLEY

Washington, June 29.—Secretary of Labor Davis announced today that bituminous and anthracite coal operators had accepted the invitation extended last night by President Harding to meet at the White House Saturday with United Mine Workers' officials to devise methods upon which negotiations for the settlement of the coal strike can be initiated.

Secretary Davis said he was unable to say whether the President would open the conference or whether that duty would devolve upon another government official.

It is probable Secretaries Davis and Hoover will be designated to represent the government. There is a possibility a representative of the Department of Justice might be included. The number of conferees is likely to be under forty.

PENCIL THIEVES GO AS OFFICER ARRIVES

Three boys entered today the Pope Grammar School in Somerville, now closed for the Summer, and amused themselves by robbing the desks of pencils. Patrolman Edmund J. Kane followed them into the building, but the boys made a successful escape through another door.

Dawes' Feet Find Resting Place on Harding's Desk

Washington, June 29.—Charles G. Dawes of "Hell and Maria" budget fame was around today, telling White House diplomatic and official friends goodby.

The elongated former brigadier of the A. E. F., who has knocked $1,750,000 from the government's yearly cost, is going back to Chicago and look after his own finances. He will not return in an official capacity, he declares.

Aside from his efficiency in organizing the government's budget system, he won fame here for:

Using genuine A. E. F. oaths before a congressional committee.

Wearing a peculiar pin-stripe suit.

Putting his feet on the President's desk.

Refusing absolutely to park his well-seasoned pipe on those fashionable occasions when the White House entertained.

PUBLIC ALONE MOVIE CENSOR, SAYS HAYS

Chautauqua, N. Y., June 29.—Addressing the Federation of Women's Clubs, Will H. Hays, former Post master-General and now leader of the motion picture industry, said:

"I recognize in the organized womenhood of the country as represented by this federation the most potent force we have for practical progress toward better things. I have come here to endeavor to enlist that power in the most active, constructive way possible to the certain end that there is actually attained the highest possible standard of motion picture production."

Censorship is not the solution to the problem, he said, for in the last analysis the opinion and moral judgment of the people is the only censor. Several representatives of producers and exhibitors were present.

HOT SPELL TO REMAIN ANOTHER TWO DAYS

At least two more hot days, with fair weather, is the official forecast for Friday and Saturday. Moderate southwest to westerly winds will prevail to offset the high humidity.

In the northern part of New England showers were reported today. Eastport, Me., was the coolest place in the country with a temperature of 52, and Galveston, Tex., and Key West, Fla., the hottest, with 92 degrees at 8 o'clock this morning. Boston and Concord, N. H., were the hottest places in New England.

BUSINESS STILL GAINS, TREASURY REPORTS

Washington, June 29.—Despite the coal strike and the threatened railway tie-up, business in the United States continues to improve, officials of the Treasury Department said today. The improvement was accounted for by heavy Summer buying of stocks in preparation for Winter trade.

COMMITTEE FAILS TO ACT ON CANAL PURCHASE

Washington, June 29.—The Senate Commerce Committee today ordered a favorable report on the big rivers and harbors development bill after adding to the House measure more than a score of amendments. Chairman Jones was instructed to poll the committee for a final vote on acceptance of amendments directing the Federal purchase of the Cape Cod and Dismal Swamp canals, on neither of which action was taken at today's meeting.

Do you realize the difference in the quality and comfort of rubber heels?

Rubber Heels—produced by the world's oldest and largest Rubber Organization

SHOEMAKER AND PREACHER

Noah Worcester, D.D., 1758-1837

History cannot number the thousands of shoemakers who left their benches to fight in battles for their countries. Worcester is one of this number.

At 17 the martial music of his fife led the Colonial troops at both Bunker Hill and Bennington.

But Worcester was too great a soul not to revolt at the carnage of war. He entered the ministry and devoted his life to the cause of Peace. He founded the Massachusetts Peace Society and established the publication, "The Friend of Peace."

The only company in this country that grows its own rubber in any considerable quantity.

NEARLY everyone has noticed how unevenly rubber heels run in quality—comparing the wear of one pair with another, and brand with brand.

It was to establish a standard of rubber heel wear, appearance and comfort that the United States Rubber Company turned its attention to the rubber heel problem.

It produced the U. S. Spring-Step Rubber Heel.

There is a science in making rubber heels. A science in the composition of the rubber. A science in the way it is manufactured.

It is this science that makes U. S. Spring-Step Rubber Heels superior to everyday heels.

In short, it is the same science that runs throughout everything made by the United States Rubber Company—makers of U. S. Spring-Step Rubber Heels.

This Company is the oldest and largest rubber organization in the world.

It grows more of its own rubber than any other manufacturer in this country.

This Company has a quality reputation to live up to—a reputation that rests just as much on the service of U. S. Spring-Step Rubber Heels as on the quality of any other of its thousands of products.

MAKERS OF UNITED STATES ROYAL CORD TIRES

Telephone Your Order if You Are in a Hurry. We Will Deliver the Tire.

R.H.White Co.

We Open a New Tire Dept. With Standard First Quality

DeLion Non-Skid Cord Tires

Guaranteed for 10,000 Miles

The biggest mileage guarantee. The handsomest appearing tire at the most Favorable Prices.

Many friends and customers have pointed out to us that we should have an Automobile Tire Dept. "Why can't you sell tires just as you sell other merchandise? You can afford to sell them at your usual low prices—your customers would have faith in the quality and mileage of any tire you recommended, and stand back of—and your charge customers would appreciate the convenience of being able to order tires over the 'phone in emergencies, and have them charged on their monthly bills."

That Seemed Good Reasoning

So after a great deal of research and considering many tires, we found one tire that was doing a remarkable business, year after year—the DeLion Cord. We investigated. We got the opinion of large distributors in other cities, who reported the DeLion tire was their most successful tire—both in sales and satisfied customers.

Hence we have decided to open a new Tire Dept.—sell the DeLion Tire, save our customers money—and give them the best tire values.

We closed the negotiations for the sale of this tire in Boston only after the most painstaking investigation and only after we had convinced ourselves that, all things considered, the DeLion represents today the most attractive tire proposition in the market.

The Makers Guarantee These Tires The R. H. White Co. Guarantees Them

Note the Many Superior Features

The Heavier DeLion Tread

DeLion Tires have an extra thick, specially compounded "Crown Type" tread. DeLion construction is believed to give 10% more than usual road surface. DeLion tires are wonderfully easy riding.

Each Cord Rubber Covered

A great advantage of DeLion cord tire construction over the fabric tires is that each cord is completely covered by rubber, which acts as an insulation. This reduces friction heat and adds materially to the life of the tire.

Non-Stretch Bead—Reinforced

The bead is composed of numerous steel wires imbedded in a solid rubber base, then reinforced by several extra layers of strong cords at this point. Double chafing strips completely surround the bead, giving the surest protection against rim-cutting.

Cushion and Breaker Strip

The Cushion is composed of pure gum, a great deal thicker than generally used, which absorbs the shocks of severe blows. DeLion users are not troubled with the usual stone bruises and fabric breaks which occur with many other tires. The Breaker Strip is a layer of wide mesh material united with the bottom cushion that acts as a protector to distribute the severe blows over a wide area.

Extra Shock Absorber Strip

The extra layer of cushion rubber is a special development of the DeLion Company and has proven remarkably successful in binding the thread to the cord body. This is one of the important discoveries in tire making brought out during the past few years.

Strong Side Walls

You have doubtless noticed how, some tires check or crack on the sides after being in service just a short time. This allows moisture to reach the cords, causing tread separation, and also permits blisters. DeLion Sidewalls are built of a rubber compound that is guaranteed not to crack or check. This is just another DeLion feature.

DeLion Full Size Inner Tubes

DeLion Red Inner Tubes are built by the laminated process, which consists of rolling many thin sheets of rubber one on top of the other, then vulcanizing them together. This prevents porousness and slow leak troubles. DeLion Tubes have steam-cured splices that positively will not loosen, and have built-in valves that will not leak. All are red rubber.

Your tire expenses will be reduced—you may be sure of the tire—you may be sure of the guarantee.

INFURIATED MOB MANHANDLES TRUCK DRIVER WHEN HE RUNS DOWN AND injures child. Police from Station 2 rescue James C. Callahan of No. 725 East Fourth street, South Boston, after he had been dragged from his machine. Almanie Dalfano (right inset), 4 years old, of No. 6 Snelling place, North End, was struck by the machine as he was about to cross Commercial street with a little chum, Eddie Bartelle (left inset). Callahan, who drives a heavy truck, was unable to stop the machine until he was twenty feet past the place of the accident. This infuriated the crowd who witnessed the accident. They pulled him from the machine and berated him. Several struck him.

ARE YOU A FLIP-FLAPPER? THEN YOU NEED religion! That's what Dr. Charles F. Hargraves, foreign head of Methodist Episcopal Sunday Schools, says is the pebble in the shoe with the dear things. Without religion flappers become too frivolous, he avers. So Patsy Walker and Vivian La Moine have started right in by learning to sing hymns.

'DIDN'T LOSE A CENT,' ASSERTS LIVERMORE

New York, June 29.—"I wouldn't make a private settlement with anyone in my stock market dealings. I prefer to take my lickings in the market, if I have any coming," declared Jesse Livermore, Massachusetts boy stock plunger, today when he took note, for the first time, of the stories crediting him with dropping $2,500,000 as the result of being short of Mexican Petroleum shares during their recent record advance.

Livermore denies that he was short. He says:

"The story that the move on the part of the "bulls" in Mexican Petroleum against the shorts had been carefully arranged to start on the day I was supposed to be at the memorial services for the late Lillian Russell Moore may be true, but I was not at the services and did not leave my office until 5 o'clock that day.

"Furthermore, the day I was supposed to have made a settlement with the Mexican Petroleum people at $128 a share, as announced by a certain stock exchange house, I was in Poughkeepsie watching the boat races."

Referring to the reports that he sold short 200,000 shares of "Mex Pete," Mr Livermore asserted that the story was absurd.

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Now I Can Walk," Says Mrs. Southcott of Medina.

"Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson, of Buffalo. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"Never let everything in this world. There is many a big hearted rich man who won d give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson s Ointment, to sell at all druggists for 35 cents a large box."

Read this letter, written February 14 1921, by Mrs. Albert Southcott of Medina, N. Y. It seems like a miracle, but it is true in every word of it.

I am w ll because I get similar letters almost every day from people who have used my ointment for old sores, eczema and piles.

Is it any wonder I am happy? Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:—

I was an untold sufferer from an old running sore and ulcer. I had tried most everything without any re ief from Dr. A. Peterson told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars worth of the salve I am cured. The ulcer was 5 inches by 6 inches, is as sound as I can walk now, never will I be without Peterson s ointment.

You may use this to recommend your ointment if you wish. I remain, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Lyndonville, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co. Inc., Buffalo N. Y.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color With Sage and Sulphur

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifu ly dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove satisfaction if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store and ready for use. This is the old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant

Conscience Fund Adds to Joy of Free American Outings

Thousands more of kiddies and mothers will enjoy the pleasures of the Boston American's outings to Nantasket Beach today and tomorrow as did these two youngsters.

Two of the Boston American excursionists snapped just about one minute after reaching Nantasket. "I believe me, this sand treatment to renew youth has nothing on this," one mother averred as she followed suit.

"Doc" O'Connell's Happy Thought Adds to Joy of Kiddies; Thousands More to Share Harbor Trips Today and Tomorrow

They all rumpled their heads, perplexed, but Pierce O'Connell.

Pierce knew what to do.

Up at the State House they call him "Doc." He's the chap with the whimsical face and curly gray hair who has the cigar stand outside the House of Representatives. He's a Civil War veteran and a State House veteran, too, having been at that same cigar stand for twelve years.

"What'll we do with it?" murmured a group of serious looking men in the Governor's office. They were speaking of some money they had just counted on a mahogany desk. It represented the "conscience fund" established a few weeks ago by the simple method of placing a collection bowl on a counter in the Governor's office and letting anybody's conscience be their guide.

EVERYBODY PUZZLED.

None of the esteemed Representatives or Senators being conscience stricken, despite the Grand Jury findings on the passage of the Public Control bill, the fund was not of, say, lobbyist's size. But there it was and the gentlemen were puzzled seeing the first conscience fund ever growing and as somebody pointed out it, "It might be a temptation in time."

A happy thought.

"Call in the 'Doc'."

"DOC'S" HAPPY THOUGHT.

In came the venerable judge of perfecto with his reassuring smile.

"Don't know what to with the money" said "Doc" as some taken back, a State House being the last place one would expect to find anybody at a loss as to the disposal of currency. "Why gentlemen don't candy with it and give to the BOSTON AMERICAN to give to the mothers and kiddies that are going outings to Nantasket this week

And that just what they did "Doc" doing the passing and handing out the American outings with a box of candy which will be passed around on the outing tomorrow

Thank you, and Doc says the mothers and kiddies

Colds	Headache
Toothache	Lumbago
Earache	Rheumatism

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100 Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

The weather man took the count yesterday.

After his prediction, calculated to keep mothers and children of Greater Boston from going to Nantasket Beach to enjoy the third day's outing of the Boston American, he woke up and saw thirteen hundred mothers and their children at the beach.

Though the rain fell in torrents during the morning hours, the optimism of the tired mothers was shown when they trooped to Howe's Wharf. Some wore rubbers, some were soaked to the skin. But they were happy

By the time the boats reached the beach and landed their passengers, the rain had stopped and the sun was shining brightly.

As if by unanimous consent, everyone headed for the water. Bathing suits appeared from nowhere, so it seemed. Ten minutes after the mothers and kiddies reached the beach, the entire shore was dotted with bathers

Kiddies scarcely able to walk were held up by mothers or older sisters, so that they could enjoy their first dip. Mothers threw off several years from her life and joined with the kiddies.

MILK TRUCK ARRIVES.

"Believe me, this third treatment to renew youth has nothing on this," said one mother, as she splashed around with her youngsters, while the high rollers playfully tossed everyone around.

The Sagamore Baths were busy all during the day. Free bathing facilities were granted to the guests of the American.

Then the big milk truck of H. P. Hood and Sons arrived, over the road from Boston. Like wildfire the news of the arrival spread to all corners. Baths and ball games on the beach stopped. A drink of cold milk on a hot day is not to be despised.

For long over a half hour the line moved up to the truck, each one receiving a bottle of Hood's milk free. Some drank it on the spot, while others betook themselves to the sandy beach, gathered around in family groups and enjoyed them selves to the limit.

Some of the boys showed that they were real business men. The Hood company gave a top for every bottle returned. Judging from the number of tops received by some of the boys, they didn't overlook many bottles

At 1 o'clock the doors of Paragon Park were opened. With a free ticket of admission, the mothers and kiddies were close by when the gates opened

Al Moore's Jazz Band gave a concert. Many of the guests, now tired from their continuous round of excitement and activity, sat down and enjoyed the music. Others, younger and more active, visited the various rides.

The returning boats at 3.45 and 4.15 carried back the guests. Games of "tag" were started on the boat, while twinkling-eyed steamship officials looked on

Today hundreds of more mothers and children sail down the harbor to the beach

Tomorrow will see the last of the outings. Mothers and youngsters of Greater Boston, the Boston American invited you to come along Read the advertisement on another page. It will explain the details

There is no red tape about these outings. You are invited. We want you to accept.

New York, June 29.—Far Rockaway was given a genuine surprise today at the announcement of the marriage of Ferdinand Schulz, son of Adolph, wealthy contractor, and Miss Pondita Nauri, the Japanese ward of Richard Mott.

MRS. ALEXANDER BRADLEY'S FIVE-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER DANGEROUSLY ILL

Here s a little bit of true life put into a form. Mrs Alexander Bradley of Danbury, Conn., says: "After trying many trying different remedies I have at last found a good medicine—Dr. True's Elixir.

"I was nearly discouraged. I was losing the oldest girl something deadly every night, but now I keep a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir handy and only give it occasionally I have tried so many things, but now as soon as I see signs of worms I give Dr. True's Elixir for quick relief.

"My son, 14 years of age, was always troubled with worms when small and 'Dr. True's' was unknown to me then. I always have it on hand now, as I have another small child. They even ask for more. Now please print this letter so other anxious mothers may know the good results which follow Dr. True's Elixir for children suffering with worms and constipation, as I cannot recommend it too highly."

Symptoms to watch: Constipation, offensive breath, swollen upper lip, deranged stomach, occasional pains, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, short, dry cough, grinding of the teeth, red points on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

A great deal of sickness comes from irregular bowels, a vital part of the body. At the first signs of constipation give Dr. True's Elixir—for it is the right kind—pleasant to take, with no griping or distressing after-effects.

A well-known New Yorker writes: "While visiting in historic old Plymouth (Mass.), my family became acquainted with your Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. It does all you claim for it in aiding digestion and relieving insomnia and constipation. Please ship me six large size bottles, for mother is in need of it."—Wm. I. Ralph.

Nearly every grown-up as well as every child needs a laxative. Keep the bowels regular by using Dr. True's Elixir. 40c—60c

Two Sides of Turnover

The alert business man dealing with present day conditions knows that the big word today is "Turnover." Whether he be a merchant, manufacturer, jobber, or banker, he sees that one thing with a clear vision unbiased by the limits of his own business. It is in the air, and on the tip of every tongue.

And yet many of them—entirely too many—are thinking on only one side of Turnover. They think of it as meaning rapid selling—putting money in and getting it out quickly and at a profit. They realize that they must put greatly increased efforts back of all their plans for selling and distribution.

The other half of Turnover is the consumer. All selling plans and efforts fail if the consumer doesn't want to buy. His desire for the product must be created. He must meet the seller half way. He must be in a mood to buy before the salesman meets him across the counter.

That is the function of Advertising—to create consumer demand and consumer preference. With this demand as a fact all selling plans have a chance to succeed. Without it they fail. The only chance for salesmanship to succeed without an existing demand is for salesmanship to assume the task that belongs to advertising—the task of creating demand.

If the present efforts that are being put into selling were amply supported by a corresponding effort to create consumer demand through Advertising, the business conditions of this country would be rapidly changed into an era of great prosperity—in spite of Old World conditions and everything else.

The proof of this is in the fact that right now, under these very conditions, the manufacturers who are putting proper emphasis on creating a demand for their product, as well as selling it, are doing a big business and are actually getting the high turnover that others are trying so strenuously to get through intensive selling.

FRANCIS OUIMET BREAKS RECORD IN STATE GOLF TOURNEY

DOES KERNWOOD COURSE IN SEVENTY

By FRED G. THAYER.

Salem, June 29. Francis Ouimet of Woodland, twice State champion and conqueror of Vardon and Ray in the National Open Championship at Brookline in 1913, eclipsed a field of 109 of the State's best amateur golfers at the Kernwood Country Club yesterday, his score of 143 leading the next best scorer, R. W. Estabrook, by seven strokes. His afternoon card of 73 was one over par, which he himself bettered by two strokes in the morning, establishing a new competitive record of 70, two strokes better than the score made by the late Louis Tellier, in 1920.

The six which he scored at the second hole was the only slip in this next-to-perfect round, where he topped into the rough from the tee.

Other than the remarkable round of the medalist, two fine cards were turned in by Bunny Estabrook of the Country Club and F. C. Newton of the same club, both of whom had medal rounds of 72, the latter getting his on the morning circuit, and the former coming in about 7 o'clock with an afternoon card equal to Ouimet's.

BREAKS RECORD BUT LOSES 2:12 PACE

Hartford, Ct., June 29.—Large fields are promised in all the four classes at Cherry Park today. The events are the 2:24 and 2:16 pacing divisions, the 2:19 trot and the trot for three-year-olds.

Yesterday's sport was full of thrills, excitement and surprises. In the 2:12 pace, the Canadian whirlwind, Katy Hall, after winning the initial heat in 2:07¼, a new track record; quarter in 30¼, half in 1:02¼, three-quarters in 1:36 and mile in 2:07¼, was forced to succumb to the stretch rushes of Hazel Kuestner, the latter grabbing first honors by a narrow margin at the tape.

S. Post uncovered a good two-year-old trotter in Trumpet, which refused to blow up, winning easily.

Scott Locke's Boston trotter My Leaf had to go one mile in 2:11¾, in winning the 2:17 trot, while Red November accounted for the special race after a hard four-heat contest.

Teams desiring games communicate (?) Joseph Cappie, No. 8 Florence street, city.

RUBIN TO DEFEND SWIM RECORDS

Dave Rubin, one of the fastest swimmers around New England, will compete in the City of Boston swim at Charles River Basin July 4. Dave is one of the famous "L" Street Brownies and holds a list of records which would fill a small sized ledger, including the quarter, half, mile and three mile events. Rubin gives great credit for his success to Jack Hurley, the swimming instructor at the North End Park Beach. On the Fourth he will defend his record in the quarter and one mile events in the basin and is pitted against a field of cracks.

NILES WINS IN TENNIS TITLE FINALS

By FRED C. LANE.

Nathaniel Niles of Boston won the Massachusetts Amateur Singles championship for the seventh year in defeating Lawrence Rice of Harvard in three out of four sets at the Longwood Cricket Club, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

Nat Niles

The champion had all the ability that enabled him to hold the title these many years and was never in danger after the first set had gone to his opponent. The humidity prevented the players from performing at their best, but notwithstanding this handicap the gallery had many opportunities to applaud.

Rice opened up by winning the first four games before losing one. He continued to take advantage of his opportunity in annexing the sixth game after it had gone deuce six times.

Niles retaliated after this frame and won the seventh, eighth and ninth games but failed to follow up his chance and went down to defeat in the ten game scoring but two points.

Rice made his opponent play most of the time on the base line and scored to advantage with his service and net play.

Niles' back hand strokes worked in championship form in the second and third sets which he carried off handily in 6-4, 6-3. The third and final set was won by him, 6-3.

It was evident after the second set that the players would give their all for the much coveted prize. Rice had four double faults during the four sets, something unusual for the Harvard boy. He lacked the pep and stamina that he displayed at the Intercity Church Cup series.

M. T. Hill won the boys' singles championship in two straight sets, beating L. Johnson 8-6, 8-6, and N. Kelentayer and H. L. Swan, Jr., won the junior doubles championship in trimming D. M. Hill and Alfred Turner, 8-6, 6-3, 4-6, 2-6, 6-4.

RAIN STOPS TWILIGHT GAME IN THE FOURTH

The rain is over and gone. That however don't help the matter any as far as either the Reading Town Team or the South Boston All Stars are concerned.

These nines battled for four innings and the visitors from Reading had scored four runs to two for the boys from Southie. They tried to play and make it a game but the clouds broke with a shower and nothing could be done and the game was called for the usual half hour.

After waiting however, it still poured and the folks at the C. J. Lee baseball orchard went home with a sad look in their eyes, as it was declared no contest.

WHY DOESN'T GREB FIGHT NORFOLK, ASKS JACK CONWAY

NEGRO IS ONLY RIVAL FOR NEW CHAMPION

By JACK CONWAY.

Harry Grob, light-heavyweight champion of the world, says he wants to fight. He would have the unsuspecting world believe he can't get a suitable opponent. Take the witness stand, Harry. Now look the world in the eye and answer this question:

"Why don't you fight Kid Norfolk?"

Don't hesitate, Harry. Out with your answer like a man.

Aren't you the world's light-heavyweight champion?

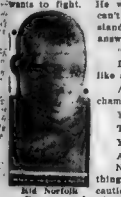
You answer "Yes."

Then why don't you answer our question, Harry?

You say it's too difficult?

And yet it is only a six-word query.

No, we wouldn't say you were yellow or anything like that. Maybe you're just a little bit cautious.



Kid Norfolk.

You say you're the champion.

We'll grant that much. But a champion—we mean fellows of the type of Stanley Ketchel, Honey Mellody, Battling Nelson, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Jeffries—fought 'em regardless of how tough they came. They posed as the best men of their boxing divisions. And they knocked down any head that popped above the pugilistic horizon.

Kid Norfolk is Champion of Colored Fighters

We don't suppose, Harry, that it's necessary for us to tell you anything about this Norfolk person.

Yes, we supposed that George Engle had given you the real low down on this colored cyclone.

You're right, Leo Flynn manages Norfolk. A wise old owl is Leo. We used to pal around with Leo in the days when he thought he was lucky if he could pick up $150 or so with some bum in a spot like Webster or Marieville.

Ah, Harry, but how times have changed. Leo's now the biggest man in the boxing game in America. And we haven't overlooked Tex Rickard either.

Leo manages a regiment or so of fighters, and also makes the matches at Madison Square Garden. Of course Leo will tell you he's out as matchmaker, but he'll also tell you that you can beat Norfolk. You know, Leo is one of those funny come-on chaps. As wise as three Greeks, as it were.

But this Norfolk CAN FIGHT.

We've seen him perform at various spots in this old U. S. A., and he'll do.

Plenty of class to Norfolk. He can hit you with his left AND MAKE YOU LIKE IT.

And he can hit you with his right AND PUT YOU TO SLEEP.

Sometimes He Wins and Sometimes He Loses

Norfolk doesn't win all the time. Harry Wills, for example, is credited with a knockout over the colored phantom. They say 'twas the invisible punch that stopped Norfolk. Maybe it was merely an effort to build up a Dempsey-Wills bout. Strange things happen in the sporting game these days.

Nobody knows just how good Norfolk really is. He's been working under wraps. Just like you do in half your bouts. He's too good for most of the birds who will enter a ring with him.

"Could he give Dempsey a fight?"

Now you're getting interested. In a six to ten-round bout. In a longer tussle, Dempsey's weight would tell.

But that's not the big question, Harry.

Take the witness stand again, please.

Don't blink so much and kindly stop shifting your feet around. Don't ask for George Engle. It's your turn to testify. Listen carefully, Harry, and some time within the next century or so answer this question:

"Why don't you fight Kid Norfolk?"

Mr. Court Officer, please give the witness a little water. He's fainted.

McKENNEY JOINS SCHOOL STARS

Joe McKenney

The addition of Joe McKenney, former Brighton High pitching ace to the hurling staff of the Boston All Scholastic team is looked upon as a great boost for the team. Mc Kenney pitched the Brighton team into the District High championship last season and intends to try his arm against stronger foes. The lanky right hander was invincible in hurling to the schoolboys of his league and bids fair to prove the same puzzle during the Summer months.

REID TO MANAGE SPARTAN TEAM

James Reid.

The Bunker Hill Spartans, of Charlestown, have signed up Jim Reid as manager and is out to fill the few open dates on the schedule with fast amateur nines. FRED WRIGHT MAY WIN WESTERN GOLF TITLE

Kansas City, June 29. (By the Associated Press.)—The fight for the semi-finalist positions in the Western Amateur Golf Tournament began today at the Hillcrest Club, with most of the eight contestants champions of some kind, and each a survivor of three days of super-golf seldom rivalled in any tournament.

All have been shooting par or better on the sporty and hilly course.

"Chick" Evans of Chicago, six times Western champion, present title-holder, and former national amateur and open champion; Dave Herron of Chicago, winner of the national amateur in Pittsburgh a few years ago, Fred Wright, American survivor in the British tournament two years ago, when "Chick" was conceded to be America's best; George von Elm, trans-Mississippi and Pacific Northwest champion, and loser of only one tournament in the last three years—these were among today's competitors.

Following are today's matches: "Chick" Evans, Chicago, vs. Ted Payseur, Des Moines. Jess Stuttle, Kansas City, vs. Fred Wright, Los Angeles. Francis Gaines, Omaha, vs. George von Elm, Salt Lake City. Clarence Wolff, St. Louis, vs. Dave Herron, Chicago.

BIG RECEPTION PLANNED FOR HAGEN

New York, June 29.—Arrangements are being made to tender Walter Hagen, the American professional, who won the British open golf championship at Sandwich, an appropriate reception upon his arrival here tomorrow.

Hagen will be met at the pier by a reception committee, headed by a band, and a motor car parade will escort him to City Hall, where a celebration will take place. Later Hagen will be guest of honor at a dinner at the Hotel Biltmore.

DARTMOUTH MAN FAVORED IN GOLF

New York, June 29.—Play for the individual title of the Intercollegiate Golf Association began at Garden City today, with Rudolph Knepper of Princeton, the Iowa State champion, and A. P. Boyd of Dartmouth favored to win.

If Knepper captures the title, Princeton will have usurped all the honors, as it has already won the team championship with a score of 1,385, and Knepper has won the medal with a 36-hole total of 152.

ROXBURY LOSES WILLIAMSON CUP GAME

By ART CURLY.

Nearly a thousand fans stayed through the showers at Sullivan square and watched the Gray A Davis soccer eleven win the Williamson Cup by trouncing Roxbury, 3 goals to 0.

Roxbury was clearly outclassed from the start, and although they put up a game fight and missed several chances to score, the Cambridge second line defence was too strong for them.

On the other hand, W. Strachan played a great game for the losers, many times stopping the speedy Gray forwards, and his work was doubled when his side partner, Dave Smith, accidentally broke his collar-bone early in the second half. The only score in the first half was via the penalty route about twenty minutes from the start, when W. Strachan accidentally handled the ball in his danger zone. Coultbard, as usual, took the free try, and had little trouble in making it count.

Roxbury put up a better game in the second half, but could not seem to connect. Several times during the fray Mike Pidgeon broke clear, but had hard luck with his shots until about ten minutes from the start of the second frame, when he managed to sneak one past Lowell.

The feature play of the match was pulled off by Smith, that classy newcomer to local soccer ranks, when he received the ball in the centre of the field and, after beating all opposition on his own, garnered the last goal three minutes from the final whistle.

Umpire Moran Thinks Whole Lot of His Broom

Umpire Charlie Moran has a nifty new little whisk broom for plate brushing purposes. Charlie thinks a lot of the baby brush, probably wants to save it for dusting mud out of his football players' eyes. So when Mickey O'Neil, Brave catcher, took a bat and pasted Charlie's new broom up against the stands, Charlie chased Mickey right out of the pasture. The catcher was peeved at the time because of a called strike that came just before the big Brave rally.

DEMPSEY OPENS TOUR AT PROVIDENCE

Providence, R. I., June 29. Jack Dempsey boxed a four-round exhibition with Larry Williams of Bridgeport, his sparring partner, before a crowd of 7,000 persons at Kinsley Park.

Dempsey was as lean and fit as a tiger and exhibited his customary viciousness, even though the bout was simply a boxing match with ten-ounce gloves. He weighed only about 195 pounds and went the route at full speed, showing that he needs only a small amount of training to put him in condition to fight.

In the other bouts, Wild Man Gould of Brockton knocked out Mickey Devine of Providence with a left hook to the jaw in the fourth round of a wild melee. Gould had Devine taking the count when the bell ended the first round and scored a knockdown in every round.

Tommy Maguire of Providence outslugged Johnny Fobuk of Fall River in ten rounds. Fobuk barely staying the distance.

Patsey Cline, Providence, stopped Al Rogers, Providence, in the sixth round and Phil Conte stopped Bobby Ritchie in the third. Both are from Providence.

The Lapham A. C. issues a challenge to meet any team that will play on week days, average 13 years old. Call Mystic 2042-R.

BILL BAILEY GOES TO HOUSTON CLUB

St. Louis, June 29.—Bill Bailey, veteran left-hander, has been released by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Houston club of the Texas League in exchange for Ray Blades, second baseman. The Houston club also will get a catcher. Blades will remain with Houston for the remainder of the season.

WASHINGTON'S VETERAN TWIRLER A MYSTERY TO RIVALS

JOHNSON THE WONDER OF BIG LEAGUE STARS

Walter Johnson, sixteen years in the big show, always with the Washington Senators, is still great. Three straight shut-out victories, hurled respectively against the White Sox, the Athletics and the Yankees, say so. So also do nine victories and three defeats for the season.

Relentless time undoubtedly has taken much toll on his one-time blinding speed, but Johnson still has a great deal of it, and can laugh at the old fellow with the scythe.

He is still the Coffeyville, Kansas, Cyclone, an appellation known all over the land, and known for many, many years.

In the chronicles of the beloved game, Johnson is written large, and, when the day comes for him to pass from the big leagues, he will leave with the knowledge that what he has accomplished will endure as long as baseball.

His multitudinous striking deeds on the hill, often with a notoriously poor team back of him, would fill a book, as the saying goes.

One short reference alone, however, will mirror how wonderfully well he has wrought.

Earned Many Games All by Himself

Johnson has pitched 97 shut-out victories since July, far back in 1907, when he first donned a Senator uniform.

Once again, it should be injected that many of these were done virtually by himself, for his support was mostly mediocre in the long stretch he has been going into the box, and his teammates' hitting was nothing much, either, on many of these shutout occasions.

These shutouts are nearly three times as many as have been made by any other American League slab star. Dutch Leonard, long of the Red Sox, late of the Tigers, but now an outlaw, is runnerup in the younger circuit with 33.

The pitcher nearest Johnson in the shutout respect is Grover Cleveland Alexander, who had 30 at the start of the season, but has not been going any too well for the Cubs.

He has only a wraith of a chance to tie or surpass Johnson. The odds are all against it.

Johnson Has Outdone All Pitchers of His Time

Rabe Adams, the Methuselah of Pitchers and ball players, is third in the list of shutout kings. The Pirates' grand veteran had 43 to his credit when the season began.

So Johnson has outdone all pitchers of his time in distributing goose eggs, and it is extremely doubtful if any pitcher will come up to outdo him.

Some one may, of course, but it is not likely anyone would care to bet on it. Then again, should one venture to wager he would have to live a long time, no doubt, to cash on it, if such a miracle should come to pass.

If Johnson had been with the Red Sox or the Athletics, wonderful champion arrays, in his halcyon days, only guess work could fix how long his shutout string would have been.

It is some consolation, though, that the Senators at last have a team able to support him so well in the field and wield the bat with such capable effectiveness.

BRAVES TRYING HARD TO SHAKE OLD JINX

By NICK FLATLEY.

A daily dose of the fight and energy that was put into the extinction of the long Brave losing streak, will attract a lot of the gang out to the Wigwam for the rest of the home stay, even though the Mitchell team is in the cellar, and has nothing in particular waiting out in the future.

The fans want some frisky baseball here, and need it in sustained jolts, as you might say. A couple of weeks of snappy playing would erase all memories of the black and bitter past, and make the rest of the Summer lucrative and exciting.

The Braves looked like a very good ball club as they staged their late rally and belted through to glory. They showed, anyhow, that the fight hasn't been knocked out of them, and they can get pretty well up in the scramble, once they decide to maul a few of the supposedly lesser clubs.

Ratios a back outlook, though, with Rockel and Southworth on the bench for at least another week. But the outfit made its best surge of the year with a 50 per cent. substitute lineup, and is more than likely to repeat the stunt.

Captain Bill Tried to Come Back Too Soon.

Captain Billy tried to come back too soon, hurt his leg over in Philly, and will now be anchored in the rave until the doctors say his limp drop is absolutely O. K. Powell really shouldn't be there, but Mitch has to play somebody, and Ray can get along if he doesn't take any sliding or running chances.

Young Mister Boeckel will hardly be back for a week, as an X-ray disclosed that the lower rib on his right side is fractured. He cracked the bone last Saturday in Philly, but didn't retire until a wrench in Monday's game knocked him groggy. Without Tony a big part of the Brave punch is missing, but Holke's thumping the ball very well now, and if he can keep going, the chap from the coast may not be missed for a short while.

Poor Pitching Has Been Cause of the Disasters

Poor pitching has been the cause of the Brave disasters as a general thing and neither Manager Mitchell nor the flingers themselves can put a pin into the exact trouble. There are no sore arms in the squad, and the sharpshooters warm up well enough. But when they go out there something happens.

Poor control ruined a dozen games in the last month, and it's peculiar as the Brave regulars normally had little tendency to miss the saucer. It's just one of those perverse streaks that chase a club, once a line starts working.

Any one of half a dozen Mitchell pitchers would bring a bag full of money if put on the market, but when it comes to delivering for the club there's a wrench in the machinery.

TWO BIG GAMES IN TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Tonight is another big night for the Twilight League fans. The St. Andrew's Catholic Club of Forest Hills will entertain the North Cambridge Knights of Columbus, at Russell Field, North Cambridge.

Warren Cote.

There will be another diamond tussle out in Roxbury at the Marcella Street grounds, between the strong Malden Knights of Columbus and the J. J. Connelly Club. Both contests should draw large gatherings, and plenty of baseball is expected.

The game at Russell Field, Cambridge, is a home game for the boys from Forest Hills, but owing to the fact that the Boston Park Department is building a new grandstand, the city of Cambridge granted the permit through the Knights of Columbus, and the scene of battle shifts to the University City grounds.

After the excellent brand of baseball these two sterling teams put up last week on the same diamond, one can look to see more than 12,000 fans on hand for the tussle.

Last week's game was won by North Cambridge, 1 to 0, and had it not been for ground rules, both King Bader, former Red Sox twirler, and Arthur Reynolds of Georgetown, might be hurling still.

It was a swell game, and all who saw the late matinee pastime will be on hand again, weather permitting. Since that battle both have won all league games played.

All indications are that Bader and Reynolds will be the men to mount the peak for their respective clubs.

Manager James Flanagan of Malden will more than likely send either Queen or Mulloney to the hill out by Roxbury, and Danner of the Connelly Club will toss Iky Kaplan or Binga King.

This game will be a struggle from start to finish.

WAKEFIELD CASEYS TO PLAY MARBLEHEAD

The Wakefield "Caseys" will open their twilight season tonight when they meet the strong Marblehead A. A. team at Wakefield.

This should prove one of the stellar attractions in this vicinity, as the "Caseys" have secured one of the best pitchers around Boston.

Providence Wants Games

The Providence Independents are without a game for Saturday and have a few open dates for July. Those desiring to arrange a game can do so by calling Back Bay 3349. Ask for Bill Leonard.

Title Clash Tonight

Reading and Stoneham High School nines will clash this evening at 6 o'clock on Lexington Field in the deciding contest for the Middlesex League championship.

Katherine Davis Has a Real Record As Pitcher

Women ball players are coming to the front at such a rapid pace that it seems but a matter of a few years when female teams will be a common sight. Lizzie Murphy of Providence, Katherine Murrey of Somerville and one or two other members of the fair sex are already shining in fast company. Scranton, Penn., is sending a young lady to compete in the Brighton Beach carnival, Saturday, whose record reads like a Frank Merriwell story. Katherine Davis, sensational athletic member of the weaker sex, boasts of having pitched forty-nine consecutive victories in less than three years, among them three no hit games, one of them a man reached first base.

NEER IS NEAR COLLEGIATE TITLE

Philadelphia, June 29.—The semi-final round of the singles championship tournament of the Intercollegiate Tennis Association today brought together two representatives of the Middle West, one from the Pacific coast and one Easterner.

Philip Neer, Leland Stanford, winner of the singles title last season, faces L. E. Williams of Yale in the upper bracket, and in the lower bracket Walter Wesbrook, Michigan plays Wray Brown, Washington University, St. Louis.

Interest centred in the Brown-Wesbrook match. Brown has been the surprise of the tourney. Yesterday he eliminated James Davies, Leland Stanford, who had been favored to win the championship.

URBAN SHOCKER QUITS HOSPITAL

St. Louis, June 29.—Urban Shocker, star pitcher for the St. Louis Browns, has left a hospital after having spent two weeks there to recover from a strained ligament in his right thigh. He is expected to take his regular turn on the mound about July 1.

FIFTY BOXING ROUNDS AT REVERE ON JULY 3

Fifty rounds of boxing, followed by a monster bonfire and fireworks is the program of the Unity Club at the Revere cycle track, the night before the Fourth of July. Matchmaker Bob McKirdy is arranging the big all-star show, while the town of Revere will offer the midnight attractions.

Colonel Bob wants it known that his big show is within reach of everybody since he is able to put 10,000 seats on sale for $1. The opening show at Revere last week was a success and the dollar boys in particular, found their seats satisfactory.

The complete card will be announced tomorrow morning at the latest. The fifty rounds will be divided into five ten round bouts. The fans will be able to make train connections for Boston after the show.

The Assumption A. A. of East Boston is without games for Saturday and Sunday, July 1, 2.

Souls for Sale

RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

What Would YOU Do?

IF you were beautiful young Remember Steddon, a Massachusetts minister's daughter, whose sweetheart died before the wedding, would you try to bring up your baby among those who knew you in your own home town? Or would you run away for a fresh start with new surroundings? If you had your living to make, would you try to get into the movies? Dr. Bretherick, the family physician, advised Remember to go to California. This she did, writing her parents a fictitious tale of having married and lost her "husband." She falls from a cliff and is told that the accident caused the death of her unborn child. Remember arrives in Los Angeles and determines to "pay the price" for a chance in the movies, but is refused. She is coached by Director Claymore, who finds flashes of talent. This struggle of a young girl to work out her own salvation is stirringly told in Rupert Hughes' greatest novel. Go on with the story.

"I WISH I had the courage and the kindliness to give you a Belasco training," Claymore said. "You know he testified in court that when he trained Mrs. Leslie Carter for her big war horse roles, he had to break her muscle-bound condition first. He threw her down stairs, throttled her, beat her head against the wall, and chased her about the room. She told me herself that she learned the technique of Independence by heart and went hours and hours repeating it as glibly as she could. Every time she missed an articulation she went back to the beginning and recited it all over again—hundreds and hundreds of times. That's how she learned to deliver great tirades with a breathless rush, yet made every syllable distinct. That's how she learned how to charge about the stage like a lioness.

"To be a great actress is no easy job. You've got to work like a fiend or you'll get nowhere. You've got to exercise your arms and legs and your voice and your soul. If you will, you've got a big future. If you won't you'll simply keep playing small parts til you lose your bloom of youth, then you'll slip into character parts and go out like an old candle."

Mem was beginning to wear down to monotony the joys of a pleasant housewifely career, the luxuries of show-girlhood.

But Claymore had to give her up. He made more desperate effort to unleash her soul and her body from the shackles of respectability.

He set her to denouncing the tarpaulin villain again. He made her pour out before that heap of wrinkles a story of shame and disgraced devotion and degradation. He put her against the wall and made her beat upon it and lament her turpitude. He made her fling herself to the floor and pound it with her fists and laugh in mockery. Then he made her draw the screw driver and five five shots into her canvas betrayer.

Her imagination flagged so distinctly in this scene that he decreed the screw driver, a stiletto, and made her stab the man to death. He laughed at the blow she dealt and forced her to cash and rip and drive the blade home until she fell down exhausted with the effort to be a murderess.

Claymore was as exhausted as she and he wasted no film on talk ing pictures of her torture.

"Let's go to lunch" he said. "We've earned a bit of chow."

The upshot of this ordeal by fire was that Mem was recognized as a start yet to be made—if, indeed, her hideous ambitions should ever be condensed into solid achievement.

Claymore felt that she had a future. He told her so. But he told her that a period of hard labor lay between her and that future. He compared the development of an artist with the slow human miracle that had rescued so much of California from the grim bleakness of the desert, the desert that yields and reconquers, retreats and returns.

Great reaches of the fairest home realm of Los Angeles had once been barren sand. Irrigation and intensive farming had made a pleasance of it and one could see every where the industry of the little pioneers pushing the wasteland back, as if humanity were feeling its way like a sluggish amoeba or a groping vine putting its tenacles forth and fastening them wherever sustenance might be found.

Claymore was one of those deep divers of ratiers who feel a passion for searching out gold where it lies, building roads, as it were, to hidden hearts and giving them expression, making a traffic and commerce of expression

He found in Mem such a temptation. Her beauty was evident, but empty-faced beauty was as cheap and useless as iron pyrites with the glister of gold and no other value.

The studios were infested with pink pretties, insipid and characterless, doomed to hold up faces as faultless and as charmless as the petunias and morning-glories that flaunt their calico in vain about country gardens and porches.

In Mem he felt the ore. He did not know that it had gone through the smelting fires of tragedy, but he felt that she was capable of tragedy, and he wanted to inspect her in the mechanisms of transmitted grief.

At the left the stage he watched her out of the corner of his eye. She did not really know how to walk, though there was unconscious grace in her carriage. What he wanted was conscious grace expert enough to mask its unconscious. He got that and realized at last that genius all the while—the deft, strong hand of the driver of a trotting horse who gets the ultimate speed from the racing machine without ever letting it break into a gallop or bolt into a mad run.

Mem loitered on the green lawn, watching the made-up actors and extra people.

Claymore talked to Mem of her self and her soul as frankly as a farm conscious dissects a soul before a believer's eyes. She was the God with the scalpel, the insensation of being the subject of such remorseless analysis. She was like one of the victims of the new fashioned operations by local anaesthesia who sits up and in a mood of hysterical fascination chats with the surgeon even while he slashes the skin open, lays bare its nerves and arteries, discloses the deep penetralia of the beings.

The director asked her if she would practice at home what he had told her and shown her on the stage, and then some day let him see her another test.

She consented with delight, and appointed the morrow as the second day there was. She had only one somber thought—that she must go home again without a promise of work, with neither income of money nor outgo of art to report.

But Claymore asked her to wait while he spoke to Mr. Dermond, who loitered on the green lawn, watching the made-up actors and the extra people and the others moving about the works. Some day they must save at her with respect and whisper, "That's Mem Steddon, the great star."

By and by Mr. Dermond came out bareheaded to see her. He had a way of meeting candidates out of doors. It was easier to remember an engagement and dash away, than to pry the more tenacious ones out of his office chairs.

Dermond shook Mem's hand warmly and said, with as much enthusiasm as if he were the beneficiary of her hopes—as of course he might be:

"Well, Mr. Claymore tells me you have much talent. That's fine! But he says your work is spotty—immature. You have little technic. But that's all right. Everybody has to learn. He has a swell part in his picture, and if you want to take it, all right. The part won't add much money, but you will get experience and that's what you want, yes?"

Mem could have hugged him. He was beautiful as the dawning sun on the hills of Eight. Love she would come to hate him and fight him as a name, a penny squeezer, a slave driver, but to Christopher Columbus and Cortez were regarded after their brief moments of beauty as discoverers.

Dermond was a believer in "new faces." He had found that the audiences would forgive immaturity of art rather than maturity of figure when it had to choose. The part he offered Mem was a role of girlish pathos with a wistful note and a few moments of village tragedy. She would adorn the screen without being able to do much damage to the story as a work.

Mem felt that in passing from director to director she was undergoing a series of spiritual miscarriages and divorces. There were such intense emotional communions that it was far more than a mere acquaintance.

But before she left the lot that day she had signed her name to a long document which she pretended to read and understand. About all she made of it was that she was to have a salary of seventy-five dollars a week during the taking of the picture, and that the company might exercise an option on her services thereafter if it chose.

Mr. Torrey was delighted in a paternal fashion. It was a sunbeam in his dark day when he could open the door to youth and hope.

Mem went home elated, and was greeted so royally that she forgot how diminished her hopes were from the immediate stardom she had imagined under Claymore's first frenzy.

The next day the star of the picture arrived on the set in a large hat. When Claymore told her that she was not to wear it during the scene she exclaimed that her hair was not dressed.

There was nothing to do but send her to the coiffeuse. This meant a delay of an hour. The company and the throngs of extras and the crew must lie idle at the cost of nearly a thousand wasted dollars to the picture.

It was with such unavoidable blunders that Dermond's cup of grief was filled. No system of efficiency could be installed to prevent the individual slip. An alarm clock that failed to ring, a telephone out of order, a letter misdelivered, and thousands of dollars of time and overhead went pouff!

The company's disaster was Mem's good luck, for Claymore, seeing her lurking in the background waiting for instruction, called her over to him.

Everything was set for a test and he dismissed the rest of the company for an early lunch, while he sent Mem through her paces again.

He had a canvas partition drawn round a corner of the scene and once more put Mem at bay against a wall with a camera and a rest of light machines levelled at her.

She had spent the evening before at mad spiritual gymnastics in the bungalow, with her mother and Leva as audience and critics. Claymore found that her soul was awakening and her limbs throwing off their inertia. He set her problems in mental arithmetic like a tutor coaching a backward pupil for an examination.

It was an exceedingly curious method of getting acquainted. Teacher and student became as much involved in each other's souls as Abelard and Heloise at their first sessions

When the star came back with her hair appropriately laundered, ironed and crimped, and the rest of the company gathered, Mem could see that Claymore gave up his task with her reluctantly. And that sent a shaft of sweet fire through her heart.

Late in the afternoon Claymore ordered her a lift home in his automobile. It was quicker than the street car, but it seemed far quicker than that. They chattered volubly of art theories and practices. They did not realize how long the car stood in front of her bungalow before Mem got out, or how long he waited after she got out, talking, talking, before he bade her the final good night.

Her mother realized it, peering through the curtains, and Leva exclaimed:

"Good Lord! The minx has the director eating out of her hand already. She'll get you!"

She said this to Mem when the girl came skipping into the house

Leva taunted her all evening, and the next morning called after her, as she set out to school:

"Aren't you going to take a big red apple to teacher?"

Mem took two of them in her crimson cheeks.

She had met none of that traditional demand for her honor as an admittance fee to the art Thrygs had refused her flat. Dermond had not invited her to love him, and Claymore had talked nothing but art. Yet Claymore occasionally gave her a scene with an actor as a foil, talked to her of the arts of embracing, kissing, fondling, rebuffing, accepting, denouncing, battling.

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

"MY son told he that, as you second fiddle, he followed you into my daughter's room when you went in there to get your wrapper. He said that you broke in on him and—put your arms about his neck—that he pushed you away, and that you slipped on the rug, striking your mouth against the corner of the table. That as he stooped and picked you up, Carter came in, flew into a race, sent you out of the room, then seizing him by the collar shook him and demanded an explanation from him—which, as I have said, he refused to give. I came in at that instant.

Adelaide sat perfectly still, her eyes fixed on her companion. She seemed turned to stone, scarcely breathing. But, motionless as she was outwardly, her brain was working with feverish rapidity.

She understood it all now. Richard had been forced to give some reason to his father for the disgraceful scene in his sister's bedroom. Otherwise, he must confess that he was a dishonorable brute who had tried to take advantage of a girl who had sacrificed herself for his mother.—a girl under the protection of his father's roof

So he had told this abominable lie —had intimated that she, Adelaide Brown, had captured and lured on him that she had been carried away by her emotions, had thrown her arms about his neck. Oh, it was horrible,—unthinkable!

Yet what could she say to this father? He would not believe her word against that of his son.

She rose slowly to her feet, but the elderly man spoke impulsively

"Adelaide! Do you think me hard in telling you all this? I had to let you know that I knew, perhaps you are not to blame for caring for Dick, if you do care for him—I mean if you love him. But at this time, in a home where there is the shadow of death, it would be best to steer course as if you had controlled your feelings. And it would have been a fine course, right and proper. Mr. Hollingshead informed his son that he had told her of Richard's very silly but slight affair.

Adelaide said:

"I will not deny the story of Mr. Richard Hollingshead and I have nothing more to say, except that I am going away this afternoon."

Then Richard commanded where his own things were. Adelaide had worn to deceive Mrs. Hollingshead into the belief that she was Patsy.

Adelaide could not answer as to her excitement she had forgotten where she put them.

Suddenly there was a sound of a call upstairs—then of footsteps hurrying through the upper hall and on the stairs. Estelle appeared in the doorway.

"Please, sir!" she gasped, "the nurse says—please come up quick! Mrs. Hollingshead is worse!"

As soon as she entered the sick room Adelaide knew by the look on John Carter's face that the unconscious woman was beyond the help of man.

Still she continued to assist the nurse as the doctor did the physician's bidding, performing the tasks that are futile and that yet must be done.

It was only a few minutes before all was over. Without a sound, with only a little sigh as if of relief, Hannah Hollingshead went on the Great Adventure on which her beloved daughter had gone such a short time before.

While the house was in the first shock of mourning, Adelaide took her leave, but not before she had glanced into Patsy's jewel case and, to her surprise whoever had taken the rings had replaced them. She had little doubt that it was Richard who had acted in this way from revenge

Hot Summer Sun Trying On The Complexion

How To Protect Your Skin And Bring Roses To Your Cheeks

A Free Oatmeal Prescription Does Its Work Overnight. You Can Prepare It At Home.

New York.—Exposure to sun, dust, and wind has a very bad effect upon the skin and complexion. There is a way to overcome this. It is by our discovery and it takes just one night to get the marvelous results," says Mme. Wilder when her friends ask her about her wonderful complexion and the improved appearance of her hands and arms. "You can do the same thing if you follow my advice," she says, "and I feel it my duty to tell every girl and woman what this wonderful prescription did for me in a single night. I never tire of telling others about these almost miraculous results. Here is the method: Procure from any druggist or toilet counter a few cents worth of ordinary oatmeal (not the kind to cook), also a bottle of Derwillo. Follow the directions for using oatmeal as given in every package of Derwillo. If it is more convenient, you can use Derwillo Oatmeal Soap instead of oatmeal.

"The first application of Derwillo will astonish you. It makes the skin appear transparent, smooth and velvety, giving anyone a youthful appearance.

"I especially recommend the method for a dark sallow skin, shiny nose, tan, coarse pores, rough skin, muddiness, wrinkles and in fact every blemish the face, hands and arms are heir to.

"If your neck or chest is discolored from exposure, apply this combination and the objectionable effect will disappear as if by magic. It is absolutely harmless and will not grow dense or stimulate a growth of hair.

"No matter how rough and unsightly the hands and arms or what blemishes they have got through hard work and exposure to sun and wind, this oatmeal-Derwillo combination will work a wonderful transformation in a single night.

"Over a million girls and women are now using it in preference to face powders and other beautifiers. This is what is the real secret of Mme. Delys' beauty."

Mme. Delys, the beautiful actress, says: "The first application of this wonderful Derwillo oatmeal combination will astonish you. It will do more for your complexion than you would believe possible. I will talk about it privately any time to all those of my friends who confess to me that they are using powders and other beautifiers. They don't realize how simple it is to have a clear, velvety complexion. It will take about one minute to prepare this oatmeal-Derwillo combination and it will last for weeks. Directions for using are given in every package of Derwillo. If in more convenient, you can use Derwillo Oatmeal Soap instead of oatmeal.

But he had heard her. "Do you mean to intimate," he asked, a hard light coming to his eyes "that my son lied to me? Then what is your explanation of the occurrence of last evening?"

"I have none that you are willing to give," she said. "You ask if I have nothing to say. Yes, I have. It is that I refuse to say a word."

Henry Hollingsworth caught her by the arm as she started toward the door

"Wait!" he exclaimed. "Stay where you are! I mean to get to the bottom of all this!"

Before she could guess his intention, he had pressed the electric bell in the wall.

"Sit down!" he ordered brusquely. Then, as the door opened and the butler appeared, he gave another command.

"Tell Mr. Richard that I want him here at once!"

As Richard entered Adelaide stood behind her chair with her hands tightly clasped. Mr. Hollingshead informed his son that he had told her of Richard's very silly but slight affair.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

"REAL friendship and lovalty are wonderful things to run across in this log-sided old world of ours," Anne had cried. "And you two folks would be over up to cynic. First, Tony does a wonderful thing for Anna. Then Cleo is tied into the celebration.

"Finally Anne hands out a lot of credit to both of us for having sense enough to love about the squarest little dear who ever tried to fight her own battles. Betwixt gratitude for having her come to live with a lonely old maid and not knowing the both of you, my dears, I'm ready to burst with pride."

"We're a funny crew," Tony affirmed with quiet satisfaction. "I guess it's my turn at speech-making now. Every one else has been so modest that I'll swank just for variety. I think we're a wonderful group of three. I think we're all fine and honest and good friends and devoted and square. But I'm ever so relieved old Bulk got to be one side of this amiable triangle of friendship with you two lovely, radiant, healthy young things to look beyond said battered old hulk—"

"Don't!"

Carlotta's voice rang out with a tone like a cello. It was tender and sad and hauntingly sweet. To me it seemed that it told the whole story of the love that she ashes in lavish on Tony. I wanted to hide my eyes and to raise a mantle of invisibility at the same time. I'd have given worlds to have eliminated myself at once. But there I was, and it was to me Tony turned, saying with tender scorn' "Bless the girl's big heart. Do you see how it hurts her to have a friend hurt, Anne?"

"Not just my friend," I replied and was heartily trying to give Tony a hint when I so longed to burst out with the glorious truth he somehow couldn't see.

But Tony laughed with such a note of whole-heartedness that even I was compelled to wonder whether or no he was deliberately avoiding an acknowledgement of the truth it was hard to believe anyone could avoid seeing

"Will you belittle our Carlotta to me?" he demanded "I believe the girl never criticized but one person in all her life, and that's the little Cordova person. When made it all the more remarkable to find that a tiny, little buzzing creature could so annoy our placid big boy girl.

Then Carlotta burst out in a voice vibrating with the feelings she hadn't been able to express—

"I'm not placid. I learned long ago that for a big woman to buzz around would be as silly as for a St. Bernard dog to try and sit in some one's lap. But I criticised Rose Cordova as callously, because I'd probably like to play the very tricks she undoubtedly uses to advantage on most of the men who come her way"

"I wouldn't say most men," broke in Tony dryly. "Your description doesn't sound very alluring."

"I called her a humming bird!" I laughed, adding far more seriously: "But I wish she weren't going to be at Jeanie's."

"We might have her with us, if you like," broke in Carlotta, grown suddenly very gentle. Then, as she developed her idea, her old nervousness came into her voice. "Your husband doesn't know how completely busy you are, even as regards both business and home. He couldn't guess that a Lilac Prin cess would get as big and shady shrub like the lilac bush itself. So, of course, he couldn't send his note to you asking for hospitality to a little creature whose lack of responsibility he most likely guessed. If Mrs. Cordova's husband was nice to him he couldn't let her treat around here on her own. Now that Carlotta, the Great has stepped it all out, let's invite her to us—and some complications and explanations and things. How about it, friends?"

Again my eyes met Tony's. This time I saw only undisguised admiration in his. Even if he couldn't fully appreciate the discomforts and miseries of my present position, he saw the fine chivalry of Carlotta's offer.

MONTHS OF SUFFERING

How a Baltimore Girl Recovered Her Health

Baltimore, Maryland.—"For several months I suffered with severe backaches and general weakness. I could not sleep comfortably at night and pains in my back. I found your book at home one day and after reading it began at once to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had very good results and some of my girl friends are taking it now. You may use this letter if you like, for the letters in your book helped me." — ROSE WAISNER, 3018 Rockland Place, Baltimore, Md.

That is the thought so often expressed in letters recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women know what they have suffered, they describe their symptoms and tell how they were finally made well.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine made from medicinal roots and herbs, and without drugs, to relieve the sickness women seldom have, which is indicated by backache, weak feelings, nervousness, and no ambition to get anything done or to go anywhere. It has helped many women. Why not try it?

FINANCE —AND— BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

To get into grips with the realities of life you must get away from Wall Street, from Lasalle Street, from stock markets and wheat pits and cotton exchanges.

* * *

I'm writing this within the shadow of the black smoke pouring from a monster, throbbing steel works, within sight of men bending their backs, and within sound of machinery whirring and groaning.

I'm writing this at Johnstown, Pa. The mainstay, the backbone, the bread and butter of this town is the great Cambria Steel Works.

Let me for a moment whisk you back from the heat and smoke and noise of this industrial reality to Wall street, to bank parlors, to stock exchanges, to the customers' rooms of brokers' offices.

There much attention has lately been paid to the proposed merger of three steel plants, Midvale, Republic and Inland, into one huge combination, the North American Steel Corporation.

Here in Johnstown much attention is being paid to the same proposal for Cambria is part of Midvale.

* * *

But there is a local difference in the mental attitudes. This great difference is this:

Wall Street and its bankers and brokers and speculators look upon the merger plans only as two more sets of figures. They discuss interestedly, most of them, whether the proposed new steel is likely to be boosted, and if so, how far by Kuhn, Loeb & Company, the bankers behind the "deal."

* * *

Cambria used to be locally owned and locally managed. It was part and parcel of Johnstown. It was Johnstown's affair. It was Johnstown's pride.

Then came the Midvale Steel and Ordnance merger, a war-born baby. Cambria threw in its lot. Local Johnstown felt aliens had laid their hands on its staff of life. Johnstown began to experience, in some degree, absentee landlordism.

* * *

Johnstown is up in arms, not merely because aliens would thus be placed in control of Cambria's destiny, but also because the "tribute" of all those who have invested their all, some of them a good deal more than their all, as local banks could testify in Cambria, that now means in Midvale stock. The popular sentiment is that Johnstown's own $50,000 to 450 000 shares of Midvale.

At an open forum of the Johnstown Chamber of Commerce dissatisfaction with terms of the proposed merger was manifested. The ire wasn't fully lifted at the forum meeting because William E. Corey, chairman of Midvale, heard that nothing he said or done until the Federal Trade Commission had reported on the proposal and until the Cambria officials were in a position to supply full detailed information.

If Cambria is to figure in any merger Johnstown would prefer to have Schwab get it. Charlie Schwab is a native neighbor, popularly regarded as extremely able, broad and friendly toward his own country folks.

Wall Street's calculations may yet be upset, if not upset, by Johnstown's threatened rebellion. To this large community Cambria and the proposed combination mean more than a few sets of figures.

Irregular Market Featured By Rally Led By Rails With Money Off to 4%

MAJOR LOSSES SHOWN AMONG OIL ISSUES

Rally led by rails, despite strike threat, featured an irregular market in New York. During the afternoon sale major losses were shown among the oil issues.

New York Central, up 2¼ at 95¾, was near its 1922 high. Several rails showed point or better gains.

Mexican Petroleum at the low was down 4 at 173, and at its day's top up 4 at 186. The Pan-American issues reacted.

In the oil group Producers & Refiners was down 4 at 41½, Standard Oil of California 4¾ at 203½, and Standard Oil of New Jersey 2 at smaller setbacks.

STEEL SELLS UP.

Almost all day U. S. Steel moved within a fractional range, up ⅝ at 98¾.

The relative steadiness of railroad shares at the outset of the afternoon, despite the acute weakness of many industrials, encouraged the bull factions to make a demonstration in that quarter. C. C. C. & St. Louis was marked up 2 points, and Reading, Louisville & Nashville, New Haven, Rock Island, St. Paul, Pere Marquette preferred, Baltimore & Ohio and Peoria & Eastern 1 to 1¾.

DU PONT ISSUE.

An inquiry for Du Pont carried it 2¾ above Wednesday's final figures, while Brooklyn Transit, Studebaker, Bethlehem Steel, Marine preferred and New York Dock gained a point each.

Oils and other of the earlier weak issues recovered somewhat, but another drop in Mexican Petroleum to 178, the lowest point on the reaction since it touched 204½, caused the entire market to recede again.

Call money opened at 4 - per cent, dropping to 4½ in the second hour and to 4¼ in the last.

Increased activity of the morning was entirely at the expense of quoted values.

Boston Notes

HORNBLOWER & WEEKS says: "As the market never stands still, big operators are reasonably certain to attack a market which big insiders are not supporting.

DR. F. A. WOODS has been elected a director of Farr Alpaca.

PUNTA ALEGRE receipts for year ended May 31 are estimated at $5,584,000 and expenses $4,248,000, leaving operating profit $1,340,000.

UTAH COPPER management is reported cautious and over shortage of labor for its plants.

BIG BINGHAM mines—Utah Copper, Utah Apex, Utah Consolidated and U. S. Smelting—are speeding up their production.

GREENE-CANANEA and Inspiration Consolidated are to abolish their Boston offices for registry and transfer, in effect July 1.

ZINC SHARES should go forward on passing of U. S. tariff rates.

CENTRAL VERMONT is to issue $754,000 equipment notes to add 700 cars to its rolling stock.

NICHOLS COPPER CO. is to handle selling for present of red metal produced by United Verde Extension, now about 3,000,000 pounds monthly.

COPPER STOCKS today are selling around 2½ points below their average of month ago and this despite rapid consumption making for firm prices for the metal.

ATLANTIC, GULF & West INDIES was a strong Boston feature, rising in spite of the recessional of the rest of Wednesday's list.

HARRIS & CO. say: "We believe that the move in Eureka Croesus has only started. Wave of buying is likely to carry quotations to very much higher levels."

UTAH-APEX is now producing over 200 tons of ore daily. It reopened a few weeks ago after a 15-month shutdown, due to lead prices slump.

ROYAL WORCESTER CORSET treasurer, Edward L. Townsend, declares all departments are running at capacity, with heavy orders on hand.

NEW CORNELIA COPPER CO. resumes full operation July 5. It now turns out 1,500,000 pounds a month, and expects to raise this by August to 4,000,000 pounds.

INVINCIBLE OIL bonds are soon to be called, it is reported, which should be a nother bull factor for the stock. Surely it's best to clean up debts before starting dividends.

ATCHISON reports 19,366 cars handled during the week ended June 23, compared with 25,922 for the corresponding week a year ago.

ROCKINGHAM, VA., has sold $50,000 of 4½ per cent. coupon refunding bonds, maturing 1927 to 1942 inclusive, to Merrill, Oldham & Co. at 101.53.

STRIKE WILL NOT STOP TRAINS

New England railroad officials in Boston today declared that the proposed strike of the railroad shopcrafts scheduled to take place on Saturday, would not interfere with the passenger or freight service of the roads.

Officials of the roads said that the strike would be confined among the railroad shops, and in case those men did go out, service would continue just the same, as the strikers, they said, were in no way connected with the operating of trains. Engineers, firemen, conductors, signal or towermen are not involved in the controversy.

Speaking for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, Special Representative Howard A. Moulton said that so little talk has been made in New England about the proposed strike that officials here have given it but scant attention.

"This is 'another Chicago affair,' he said, "and, in fact, the shop men are entirely separated from the other union members who are affiliated with the real operations of the trains."

Boston & Maine officials also declared that the strike would have no bearing at all in operating passenger or freight service on their road, as the shop men are entirely eliminated from the operating standpoint.

PORT SNUBBED BY U. S. LINE, SAYS MAYOR

In a letter to E. E. McNary, passenger traffic manager of the United States lines, Mayor Curley criticises the action of the line in making the port of Boston merely a calling station and not a port of clearance and entry for its ships.

The Mayor characterizes the recent call here of the President Adam as of little value either to the port of Boston or to the company. The Mayor's action was prompted by a communication from the Boston Industrial and Commercial Bureau pointing out that the Cunard, White Star and other large foreign lines were making Boston a permanent port for their vessels, while the ships of the United States lines were using it merely as a way station on the transatlantic trip.

BOSTON LAWYER WEDS SOMERVILLE GIRL

More than a thousand people thronged St. Catherine's Church, Somerville, at the marriage of Felix Forte, a Boston lawyer, to Miss Alma Marie Locatelli, daughter of former Aldermen and Mrs. John C. Locatelli of No. 78 Belmont street, Somerville. Many prominent and city officials were at the ceremony. Among them were Secretary of State Frederic Cook, Mayor John Webster and the entire Board of Aldermen. A reception was tendered the couple at the bride's home. After an extended wedding tour, the couple will reside in Somerville.

TITLE TEST ANSWERS

Correct Title—The Junction.

The Century Dictionary defines "junction" as "a place or point of union or meeting."

Movie News and Gossip

By FRIEDA DAVIS

NO LONGER will the girls behind the counters of our stores or the men who make Boston safe for pedestrians and all the rest who yearn to become Elinor Glyns and Rex Beaches be mulcted for the quantities of fake "scholie" that have sprung up throughout the country since movies have proved a lucrative business.

The Screen Writers' Guild of the Authors' League of America is now taking a hand at running down these vultures. They are investigating all the ads that come out quoting not only the promised land of Hollywood but most of the gold made famous by Midas as the reward of merit for paying them money. A large fine and possible, even probable, imprisonment is the reward snapped out for them if they're caught.

Right here is a good place to warn all those who have been contemplating joining a correspondence class as a short cut to the studios of the West coast. Few of them are reliable. They are money-making schemes thought up and organized by "get-rich-quick-Willingtons." There is no royal road to the studios. Anyone who offers such is simply offering a new form of "gold brick." Don't buy it.

OUR MODEST "BOOL."

THERE is nothing of the bragart about "Bull" Montana! This maitiese idol has just landed in Italy for a visit "back home" before he comes back to this country to lend his cauliflower ears to the screen once more.

"The Bool," as he is called in Hollywood, cabled home to friends on this side that his "knocked 'em cold" in Italy on his appearances! Fancy that, Nastmova!

"MONKEY, MONEY, MONEY."

THAT'S the title of the next Katherine MacDonald feature, on which she started work this week. Tom Forman, who directed her in "White Shoulders," is giving her orders for this film, too. Whatever weaknesses Miss MacDonald's pictures may have—and they have many—there is nothing lacking in the titles. She has managed to pick box office winners nearly every time.

JOY FOR MISS JOY.

LEATRICE JOY can walk into any insurance office and no one would even look up to say "Good morning." She can go all through the place and come out without a scratch or a policy. She's too much of a risk. No company, except Lloyd's, is willing to take a chance. But then, Lloyd's even insures the weather.

Only a few of the stunts she must do for her role of the distressing debutante of the C. B. De Mille production of "Manslaughter" include racing with a speeding train, attempt to cross in front of it, skid onto the tracks, and then escape by a matter of inches; drive a car at a terrific speed in attempting to escape arrest for speeding, skid into a turn and cling to the wheel as the pursuing officer crashes into her car and hurdles across it to his death; spend a week of working days toying with two Bengal tigers while a camera cranks a Roman revel scene.

Does Heloise still want to be a star?

HOLT, SON OF ADVENTURE

JACK HOLT tried lots of things and then decided to star for Famous Players. He started out his adventurous career by choosing the old Marshall mansion in Virginia for his birthplace. It was from this house that Sheridan started his famous ride against time, "with Winchester twenty miles away."

Holt left the parental roof for the Virginia Military Institute, became a civil engineer and became a surveyor in Alaska. He prospected in the Summer and Spot, in his search for gold, all the money he had saved. Then he became and made it in an Alaska minstrel show. He did a stunt for a Beatrix Michelena picture, and then the movie bug bit him. He has been with them all, Universal, Lubin, and so on, up to Paramount, and now he was a ranch owner for a while, besides.

RODOLPH VALENTINO, COOK

FANCY the sleek Rodolph Valentino standing anxiously over a gas stove, pouring oil into a frying pan until its depth is the thickness of his forefinger. Fancy him slicing onions into it and then putting in a touch of garlic. Imagine!

Then imagine him taking it all out and fixing it up to eat. He can do it, he likes to do it, and he does it whenever he wants to. Valentino declares he likes acting, that it's his life work and all that, but if worse comes to worst he CAN cook!

"RIBB TIDE" COMING

GEORGE MELFORD is "all set" to start work on "Ribb Tide," the screen version of Robert Louis Stevenson's novel. Lila Lee, James Kirkwood, Raymond Matton, George Fawcett, Noah Beery and Jacqueline Logan will have the principal roles.

DUCHESS MAY BE NEW RULER OF MONTE CARLO

Monaco, June 29.— Charlotte, Duchess of Valentinois, may be the next ruler of the little principality of Monaco.

Rouleau here today intimated that Prince Louis may not accept the title as he is very much against gambling and exravagance. As gambling is the one source of income of the principality the Prince might find it difficult to reconcile his views on the matter with the necessity of keeping up the income of Monaco. The Duchess is the daughter of the late Prince Albert.

Five-Cent Fare Will Boost Business in Boston

The public trustees of our Boston Elevated Railway Company make a report for June which is somewhat comforting. They carried 6,513,000 passengers for five cents as against 1,500,000 passengers last year. Last year they carried 27,000,000 passengers for ten cents. This year they carried only 24,000,000 passengers for ten cents and yet they carried over 2,500,000 more passengers this year than they did last year. To be accurate, they carried 2,175,649 more passengers in May of this year than they did in May of last year.

We take it that this is largely due to the fact that the zones in which five-cent fares prevailed have been increased in this period and that the 6,500,000 passengers carried this year for five cents represents a large increase in the amount of riding. This is to be expected. Indeed we believe that a flat five-cent fare would so increase the total amount of riding as largely to make up the loss in total revenue. Although the total revenue of the road was $47,000 less than the total revenue last year, yet the profits were $257,000.

In the meantime rapid transit facilities are being increased. The trustees in their report say concerning one increase in facilities:

> During the month of July, two and three-car trains will be operated between Lechmere square, East Cambridge, and Broadway and Shawmut avenue. Highland avenue, Somerville avenue and Cambridge street cars will transfer passengers at the Lechmere Square Terminal to trains operated every four and five minutes during non-rush hours and every three minutes during the rush hours. The increased seating capacity provided over the Viaduct and through the Tremont Street Subway amount to 8,754 per day and many of the transfer difficulties at subway stations will be remedied.

There seems to be some local objection to this change. We invite correspondence on it.

In the meantime our confidence in the public managers grows apace.

Our Market Problem

Chamber of Commerce Declares Congestion in the District Materially Affects Cost of Living

The Boston Chamber of Commerce calls our attention to the distressing congestion of our market district. "This condition," says the report to the Chamber, "affects materially our cost of living."

The market facilities, which with a population of 800,000, we are using today are practically the same as those we used when we had but 60,000 people. These congested conditions require as much time to take a crate of strawberries from the edge of the market district to the market itself as it does to bring it by train to Boston from a distance of fifty miles.

The report continues:

> The answer to our problem is to secure better marketing conditions. The cost of distribution is now equal to the cost of production.

The report suggests the possibility of establishing a new market district which is more accessible to the railroads and more free from congestion. Whatever the solution of the problem may be, it is an important problem, and ought to be solved in the shortest possible time.

Anglomaniac Folly

High Prices Again—Soldiers and Union Men

Copyright, 1922, Star Company.

In the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York, three stones from the high altar of the ruined Abbey of Bury St. Edmunds, upon which England's Magna Charta is supposed to have been laid, have been reverently built.

Recently in this American cathedral, services were held in memory of the signing of Magna Charta by King John at Runnymede, 700 years ago. You will wait awhile before the English build into the masonry of Westminster Abbey any splinter from the table on which Franklin, Jefferson and the other old gentlemen signed the Declaration of Independence. England is for England, the United States seems to be quite largely for anglomaniac simpletons.

The newspapers and statistics tell you that the cost of living is going up again. "Every article entering into the high cost of living and utilized in industries showing signs of revival is going up." The Department of Labor reports it.

You notice how well organized finance protects itself as compared with the unorganized population.

The government Labor Board and all the power of government, as you have noticed, are used to put down the wages of railroad men, and others. There is the power of injunction in the courts to check coal miners when they threaten to strike for more pay. That was seen recently. But nowhere in government does there seem to be any power to do what is really important, TO PROTECT ALL OF THE PEOPLE FROM EXTORTION IN FOOD PRICES AND IN OTHER PRICES.

The New York Times, in an editorial mocking Samuel Gompers, declares in substance that Union Labor is not fit to associate with soldiers, because while soldiers were giving their lives in France, "the workers rolled more than 6,000 strikes, by actual count." True, perhaps, but that was the only way to make the profiteers give to the workers a part of the money that was going.

Why doesn't the Times get excited about the more than 6,000 kinds of separate stealing that high-grade patriots invented to rob the government, hiding themselves behind Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. and other patriotic camouflage?

What the workers got went to feed women and children, or to boom business perhaps in foolish purchases of silk shirts and $15 shoes. What the patriotseers got ran into the thousands of millions, and they still have it.

Death at Crossings

Editor Boston American:

Your cartoon in the Boston American of June 23, in regard to "Death Lurking at Grade Crossings," is certainly a timely warning, considering the recent sad accident at Peabody and an accident in this village, when a hand car on the railroad collided with an auto. The selectmen have recently permitted the railroad to instal automatic signals at four crossings in town. With the vacation season and a campaign for safety at grade crossings in full swing, let us have less dear economy, which is money paid for accidents, money spent on signals which are an experiment as yet.

Stop the Lynchings

Editor Boston American:

One horrible case of lynching follows another, yet the Dyer anti-lynching bill is still hung up in the United States Senate. The chief difficulty seems to be the fear that it might be thrown out as unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court.

The Constitution of the United States says (Article 3) that the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction in all cases affecting ambassadors and consuls, and those in which a State is a party; and that it shall have appellate jurisdiction in other cases, "with such exceptions and under such regulations as the Congress shall make." Congress lately passed a law against rent profiteering in the District of Columbia, and added a clause saying: "This law shall not be subject to review by the Supreme Court, and the Supreme Court shall have no jurisdiction over it."

If our Congressmen can do this when they are themselves inconvenienced by high rents, they might do it when their fellow creatures are inconvenienced by being burned alive.

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL.

Personal Feud

Editor Boston American:

The exclusion of a South Boston Congressman from a dinner recently tendered Secretary of Labor Davis in Boston, while he was acting as escort to the Cabinet officer, reflects nothing but discredit on the Mayor. While we can understand a man of Curley's stamp reopening a personal feud at the first opportunity, the circumstances were such as to make the Mayor's action wholly unbecoming to the chief executive of the city. Congressman Gallivan is one man of whom his district and State can well afford to be proud. And in the Fall elections, when Curley will probably resurrect the Curley-Gallivan vendetta by lending his eloquence and influence to Senator Carey, Gallivan's opponent, it is to be hoped that his personal animosity for the Congressman will have less weight with the voters of the Twelfth District than the enviable and commendable record of "Jimmy" Gallivan.

Denies Statement

Editor Boston American:

I am the only colored man employed in the engine or boiler room at the United States Appraisers' Stores here. In your paper you printed an alleged statement by "a colored porter in the engine room," relating his alleged experiences while some empty champagne cases, voicing an alleged complaint by this colored porter because "they never left one bottle of wine in the cases." The publication of this article does me a great injustice and injury. I did not make a statement of any kind relating to liquor to anyone not connected with the Customs Service, and certainly never complained to any person, living or dead, that a bottle was not left in the cases.

WILLIAM ROBINSON.

HARSH CRITIC PAYS IN HIS FACIAL UGLINESS

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

IT is a question just how much fun the critic gets from his criticism.

We are not speaking of the professional critic of musical, artistic, or literary performance.

What we had in mind was the amateur criticism of one another in which most of us indulge considerably, and which commonly masquerades as "conversation."

Whatever mischief may be done to the object of our criticism, there can be no doubt of its reflex damage to the critic himself or herself.

Consider Lillian Russell, lately dead but whose memory will live in the annals of the stage and will last in the memory of two generations of playgoers.

Her name became the very synonym of beauty. Her voice too was beautiful and true, but not so remarkable as it might have been made had her face been less lovely.

For homeliness, with the subconscious sense of inferiority which it gives, often serves as a stimulus to effort which conscious comeliness fails to give.

Nevertheless, this fat-loaded stage favorite freely blessed with the joy of beauty millions of American eyes and ears.

However, what remains most admirable in this fair lady, now removed from public life and the common ken, is her always invisible and inaudible charm of personality.

And this in turn was due to her friendly, loving spirit. For it is said of her that no harsh criticism of a fellow being was ever known to pass her lips.

Otherwise, we would not here be using her as a shining example to the contrary type of person, the sort that seems to get so much satisfaction from the spoken adverse judgment of others.

There may not be much use in preachment on this score. But, if the moral appeal fails, the appeal to self-respect or physical vanity may not be futile.

Personally we believe that much of Lillian Russell's lasting beauty of face was due to her kindliness of spirit. Contrariwise, we hold that the harsh critic pays in facial ugliness for his ugliness of spirit and of speech.

What fun, then, does such critic have if he has to pay with poisoned soul for poisoned tongue and with unpleasant tell-tale lines for his unfriendly thoughts.

On the other hand, your kind thought and your friendly word bleases the recipient and makes you the happy and successful painter of your own portrait.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

YOU are one of those people who live more in the realm of thought than in actuality, if today is your birthday, and you never do a thing quite as perfectly as you dream it. The world goes on about you while you live in the fanciful existence of your own imagination; and when you come to with a start you are surprised and aggrieved at your failures and others' successes.

After sunset today the heavens will show a beneficent aspect to all new ventures, but until that time avoid decisive action.

Your ensuing year will be one of unexpected success in new enterprises. You will acquire new methods of thought and action.

A child born today will be imaginative and impulsive and should be sympathetically taught.

ARE YOU USING YOUR MENTAL POWER?

How often do you use the power you possess, mentally?

Instead, you prefer to jog along rather than to exert yourself enough to accomplish real progress.

Sometime you will have the energy you think to yourself.

But dormant power grows weaker.

When you awaken to the real need of concentrated use of your best efforts, you may find it too hard to get yourself together.

Your thoughts will fly wide of the mark.

Your nerves may be too tense.

Your social duties, your many civic offices, your vain honors, may be so numerous that real down to the ground effort to get what you need by way of knowledge and how to use it, may be harder to accomplish than you dream.

What good does it do you as a man or woman if you possess knowledge or ability to get knowledge and do not make use of your mentality.

SEEN AND HEARD

AN old-time Victoria, two snappy black horses, a coachman, still and upright, sitting on the coach box, an old lady in black seated within, on School street, in front of City Hall—wedged in between the modern vehicles of travel—automobiles. It seemed like a breath of the good old-fashioned past.

JAMES J. STORROW is on his way to Europe on a Summer vacation trip. One will remember Mr. Storrow as a former city councillor, candidate for Mayor and a former member of the Democratic City Committee from old Ward 11.

SENATOR GARDNER W. PEARSON of Lowell, as predicted in this column, has made formal announcement of his candidacy for district attorney of Middlesex County, where "Nate" Tufts once held away. One of the most interesting facts of his long public record, which he is setting forth before the voters of his district, is that, with REPRESENTATIVE SAMUEL H. WRAGG of Needham, he was joint author of the anti-drug law, which was passed by the Legislature as the result of the campaign waged by the Hearst newspapers.

That women are taking an active interest in municipal affairs may be noted by the way in which they have answered MAYOR CURLEY'S offer of a $500 prize for the best way to dispose of the city garbage, regardless of the fact that it was offered to a certain college, exclusively. BUDGET COMMISSIONER CHARLES J. FOX, to whom the answers were sent, has received to date more than 500 letters regarding the subject, mostly from women.

PRESSER—A good name for a tailor's agent. See news columns.

Nearly 70 per cent. of the Episcopal ministers in Massachusetts use the "weed." Many of the younger clergymen smoke cigarettes. BISHOP LAWRENCE does not smoke, but BISHOP BABCOCK occasionally takes a whiff at a good cigar. REV. DR. ELWOOD WORCESTER, rector of Emmanuel Church in this city, gave up smoking a few years ago, but has recently taken kindly to the pipe as a consoler in parochial work.

Not the least of the amateur hikers in Boston is no less a personage than DR. EDWARD W. WILSON, the obliging superintendent at the Boston City Hospital. The doctor seems to be forever leading someone, cheerfully, through the maze of avenues to the wards. "Just for the fun of it, I wore a pedometer the other day," said he recently, "and at 5 o'clock in the afternoon it registered fifteen miles. That total constituted only my mileage in the hospital."

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON TRUSTING THE SENSES

By Garrett P. Serviss

HERE is another letter that tells a story; and a good story it is, first of the joys of farm life, which many a city man still remembers from the days of his youth, thank God, and second of the deceptions of the senses that from the beginning of human history have filled dark corners and unfamiliar places with ghosts, hobgoblins, wraiths, and other thrilling creations of the ever-ready imagination:

"I enjoy your articles very much, and I want to tell you of a little incident that happened this morning, not because the incident is, in itself, anything, but because it may make your thoughts flow, and also your pen. You are doing a great work in brushing away the cobwebs of the mind.

"I was working in the barn, which, by the way, is rather dark, when, lo and behold! surely there lay my pet gray-speckled hen, apparently dead. Her head was thrown backward, and my first thoughts were that she had been dead for some time. I placed a five-tined fork beneath her, thinking to carry her out, when, to my surprise, her body had apparently no weight!

"I stopped to investigate more closely and found that my supposedly dead speckled hen was really only a wisp of hay, which had so cruelly deceived me. My joy knew no bounds, when, lo and behold! here comes my old speckled hen singing the age-old song of Spring, and never, at least to me, had the song rung so sweet.

"This incident leads me to wonder how many of the old dead hens of the past were only wisps of hay. Truly,

"GUY LERMON.

"Starbuck, Minn."

Mr. Lermon's letter indicates that there is some resemblance between his mental attitude toward nature and that of the Roman poet-philosopher, Lucretius, who wrote in the first century before the Christian era. Lucretius was fond of pointing out how misunderstandings of the senses lead to superstitions of the mind. If the incident of the supposed dead hen had occurred in his barn he would surely have found a place for it somewhere in his great didactic poem "De Rerum Natura." He would have used it to poke another hole in the crumbling temple of the pagan gods.

I remark of Mr. Lermon's incident that it points out with admirable clearness the greatest source of superstitious fancie and deceptions, which is th habit, in doubtful cases, of basing conclusions on the report of a single one of the five senses, when some, or all, of th others may be called upon furnish confirmation.

To his eyes the speckled h was dead beyond question, t the muscular sense of touch stantly checked the thoug and that of hearing final ended the deception. Generall it is the sense of sight that is too credulously trusted; and right it probably, the sense most easily deceived. Ghosts owe everything to this blind confidence in a fallible sense, which dealers in ghosts find no difficulty in fooling with photographs.

Women Who Love Pets Have Been Forced to Wear Court Plaster Dogs

Beauty marks are coming back into style, and the women are sticking little court plaster dogs, cats and birds on their faces.

One dame was wearing so many little animals that each cheek looked like a side show.

Some of them even deck their foreheads, and it's nothing to see a girl walking down the street with a bulldog on her mind.

One society woman had three little ducks pasted on her right cheek. Then she oried and two of the ducks swam across to the other side.

She was two days locating the other duck, but she finally found him hiding between her chins.

She had wept so freely that a little pond had formed there.

It's a good thing that they weren't chickens or they'd have been drowned.

These little court plaster animals are in different colors, such as blue and black, etc. This is purely a feminine fad. If the man wanted black and blue marks on his chin, they'd get married.

Women who love pets have been forced to resort to this. Most apartment houses won't let their tenants keep animals.

These pets often come off when you kiss a girl. One guy went home with two cats and an Airedale on his lips.

One dame in Boston wire[d] to a famous dog fancier in San Francisco and wanted him to send her three wire-haired fox terriers made out of court plaster.

Even these court plaster dogs have to have a pedigree. No girl would think of wearing a mongrel.

The women don't only wear animals, they often put their sweetheart's head on their cheek. Some guys are so bashful that this is the only way a girl can get it there.

This is rather trying for a dame who has a lot of admirers. When she goes out in the evening she doesn't know whether to wear Harry or Jim.

So she chooses between them and wears George.

It's hard for a girl to wear every man she knows because she hasn't room, and since prohibition the average fellow you meet has a long face.

It's a wise man who knows whose cheek he's being worn on today.

One woman wore her husband's head for three months and that seems to be about the longest that any man sticks to his wife.
